Petition Asks Release of Mansfield Slayer

Winter—No Fooling

IN NEW YORK
In a period of a few hours, this is what a blizzard did to New York. A driving wind piled a seven-inch snowfall into huge drifts, and practically paralyzed traffic.

IN WASHINGTON
The nation's capital isn't often so completely covered by snow as it is shown here. The scene pictured here is the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

IN NEW JERSEY
Oh what fun it is to ride, etc. When the snow's heavy, Dobbin does pretty well after all. This picture was taken at Teaneck, N. J., where a heavy snow stalled motor traffic. A dairy company pressed this sleigh into service.

IN CLEVELAND
Ohio's more used to heavy snow than the east, perhaps. Here are a couple of Cleveland youngsters having a swell time coasting in a city park.

MOVES TO WIN CLEMENCY FOR LIFE TERMER

City and County Officials Turn Down Move Seeking Freedom for Charles Wilson.

PRESENTED BY WOMAN

Prosecutor Says He'll Fight Any Attempt to Release Slayer of Girl.

A petition appeared in Mansfield today seeking the release of Charles Wilson, 25, now serving a life term for the slaying of Jean Moorhead on April 4, 1936.

City and county officials revealed today that they had been approached and asked to sign the petition. They said the petition was in the possession of Miss Helen M. Bair, 356 West Fifth street, who went from the city building to the county courthouse.

Denies Circulating Petition.

Reached in the office of Sheriff E. P. Long by telephone, Miss Bair disclaimed any knowledge of the petition, and denied circulating one.

City Auditor Paul Kelley and Service-Safety Director Earl Nist were among those who said she had asked them to sign the petition.

They refused, they said.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said he had seen her with the petition but said she had not asked him to sign.

Hears Jurors Favor Move.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, who with Special Prosecutor George H. Blecker, handled the prosecution of the case which resulted in Wilson's conviction on a charge of first degree murder and his sentence to life imprisonment, said he had heard that some of the jurors who convicted Wilson were now attempting to bring about his release.

He said he had not seen the petition Miss Bair was reported to have had. Mrs. E. P. Long, wife of the sheriff, said she had refused to sign it.

"I certainly will oppose any release for Wilson," Marriott said. "He has served only a little more than two years.

Japanese Told To Arm For 2 Wars, China and Russia

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Japan must have sufficient munitions on hand to fight, if necessary, two wars simultaneously against Russia and China, munitions makers were told by the war office today.

Lieut. Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, war minister, told the manufacturers at a conference that it was necessary to increase the munitions output immediately.

"The army must answer for national confidence and set the imperial mind at ease by achieving the mission imposed on it," Gen. Itagaki said.

Viscount Akira Toki, vice minister of the army, said it was necessary that Japan posses munitions for two wars simultaneously. He added that the army demanded that the government enforce the entire national mobilization law, under which war-time production has been speeded up.

The foreign policies of Great Britain, France and Russia, make it necessary that Japan increase munitions production. Toki accused Britain with helping Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

R. D. Scoon, superintendent of the U. S employment service, said not one of the 8,000 persons registered could qualify for a job posing as St. Nicholas in department stores, lodges and clubs.

The qualifications: Good nature, love children, short stature and a reasonably big stomach.

Noted Ohio Coach To Speak at Grid Banquet

Peden to Head Program for Dinner Honoring Tygers Dec. 6.

One of Ohio's most famous football directors will be the principal speaker at the fourth annual banquet to be tendered Mansfield high school football team by The News-Journal at the Mansfield-Leland hotel Tuesday, Dec. 6.

He is Don Peden, Ohio university head coach and athletic director.

Peden follows Mansfield's own Pete Henry, now athletic director at Washington & Jefferson college, as the principal speaker at these annual football affairs inaugurated by The News-Journal in 1935.

Francis Schmit of Ohio State and Bill Edwards of Western Reserve were the speakers at the first two banquets.

Peden is probably Ohio's most famous coach with the exception of Schmidt. Although coaching at a small school at Athens, Peden's teams have fared well in competition with major elevens.

This year Peden's Bobcats opened their season with an upset 6 to 0 victory over Illinois, his alma mater. His 1935 team also won over the Illini.

Probably one of the most sought after coaches in the nation, Peden has preferred to remain at Ohio U. It has been reported that he will remain there until Bob Zuppke forfeits the reins at Illinois. Zuppke once stated Peden was his first choice as his successor.

Peden went to Ohio U. as assistant coach in 1923. The next year he was named head coach there. The football fortunes of the Bobcats were not at a particularly high ebb at that time, but under Peden they improved immediately and the genial Ohio mentor has never experienced a losing season.

COACH DON C. PEDEN

His 1938 team won seven out of nine games to run his all-time record to 91 victories against 29 losses. This record is all the more remarkable considering the fact that in his 14 years his teams have played teams of the caliber of Navy, Michigan State, Indiana, Purdue, West Virginia, Rutgers and Illinois.

Tickets for the banquet honoring Coach Russ Murphy's gridmen were placed on sale today at the business office of The News-Journal, Tawse Pharmacy, Bates candy shop and Senior high office. The price of tickets is $1.55, tax included, the same as last year.

Those desiring to attend the football affair are urged to buy their tickets immediately as only a limited number of reservations will be available.

Welcome News--Relief In Sight, Says Weatherman

Mercury Skids to 12 Above in Mansfield Sunday, But Tuesday's to Be Warmer, Forecast.

Relief from the record November cold which has gripped the eastern half of the nation for five days and dropped the mercury to 12 degrees above zero in Mansfield Sunday, was in sight today.

The forecast predicted fair tonight and Tuesday with warmer weather due Tuesday. There was no immediate prospect of more snow.

Despite slippery highways and streets and the unseasonable cold, not a person was reported injured in week-end traffic in the Mansfield area, and there were few fatal accidents in the state.

GETS LICENSE

Councilman's Son Re-opens Cafe Closed for 3 Months.

A cafe operated by Councilman Fred Miller at 151 Orange street which has been closed for the past three months because of the revocation of his liquor license by the state board of liquor control, has been reopened by his son, Fred Miller, jr.

Associated Press dispatches from Columbus today said liquor department records showed that licenses for high-powered beer and whisky had been issued to young Miller.

The councilman's license was revoked by the board following a hearing in which he was cited for illegal sale of whisky on Sunday. State liquor agents charged that one of Miller's employes had sold him a pop bottle of whiskey on Sunday which he carried from the premises as evidence.

CLEVELAND EYES SAFETY RECORD

No Fatalities In 16 Days Keeps Traffic Toll at 122.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)—Cleveland began its 16th consecutive day without a traffic fatality.

So far this year there have been 122 Cleveland traffic deaths, compared with 220 to the same date last year.

Mayor Harold H. Burton today appealed to all citizens, as members of a special "committee of a million" to use extreme care, in the hope of claiming for Cleveland the title of "the safest city in America."

Copper Supplies Bond But Delays Starting On New Job

Harry Copper, former city patrolman, today became an assistant probation officer in county juvenile court, but Judge C. J. Anderson said he would not go on duty until it is decided under whose supervision he will work.

Appointed by Judge Anderson, Copper was to have served under Police Chief Meade K. Bates, but Mayor C. M. Hunter said would not assume that responsibility. Copper's appointment is for two months.

Asserting that he was willing to take Copper in his department, Judge Anderson said he would confer with Mayor Hunter probably this afternoon on the question of supervision.

At the suggestion of Judge Anderson, Copper provided a $1,000 surety bond today, which Judge Anderson said "will serve to protect the 10 persons who are contributing to his salary."

Copper will go to work Tuesday if details of his supervision can be worked out in time, Judge Anderson said. He said the bond, same as that required of other county juvenile officers, would be filed in juvenile court today. The bond is with the New York Casualty company.

Ten friends of the former patrolman agreed to contribute $10 a month each for two months to pay his salary under the temporary appointment. Copper will be assigned to special juvenile work, Judge Anderson declared.

ROOSEVELT TO RESUME CHATS WITH ENVOYS

Calls Wilson and Phillips for Second Conference After Four-Hour Meeting.

WILL DETERMINE POLICY

Reports From German, Italian Ambassadors to Form Basis for Stand of U. S.

(By Associated Press)

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—President Roosevelt held his ambassadors to Germany and Italy here today for further discussions of the problems of oppressed racial and religious minorities abroad.

After a four-hour dinner conference at his isolated Pine mountain cottage last night, he sent them to bed with instructions to come back to luncheon today to resume the interchange of views.

The conferences are expected to crystalize the developing American policy which thus far has embraced condemnation of persecutions of Jews, Catholics and Protestants in Europe, efforts to protect American citizens and property, and co-operation with other democracies to find foreign refuges for the mistreated.

'Enjoyable Meeting.'

The German ambassador, Hugh R. Wilson, who was summoned home from Berlin at the height of anti-Jewish violence following the murder of a German diplomat in Paris, and the envoy to Rome, William Phillips, who is home on leave, said they had a most enjoyable meeting with the president last night.

The president already has stated he will give six-month extensions for approximately 15,000 persons from Germany and former Austria in this country on visitors' permits as a measure of protection against possible mistreatment should they be forced to return to Europe by Dec. 31.

Quotas to Remain.

He has said repeatedly, though, that he will not let down the immigration bars for Jews or others over and above the immigration quotas.

Besides his second conference today on the acute foreign situation, the president planned to see Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Gov. Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas. The purposes of their calls were not announced.

STORES BUSY

Christmas Shoppers Answer Merchants' Plea With Rush.

Mansfield shoppers ushered in the Christmas shopping season Saturday—opening day—with a rush, the Retail Merchants association reported today.

V. H. Lodde, secretary, said all the stores participating in an intensive "shop early" campaign reported a gratifying response to their efforts to get the Yule buying season underway earlier than usual.

Lodde said merchants had made arrangements to have Christmas stocks available earlier this year than ever before in order to give shoppers more time and attention.

"The early shopping movement, which is sweeping the country, through efforts of retailers, has taken a marked hold in Mansfield," Lodde said.

DEATH CLAIMS ARTHUR HUGHES

Head of Hughes-Keenan Firm Dies of Heart Attack on Way Home From Church.

Arthur Sheridan Hughes, 60, founder and president of the Hughes-Keenan company and prominent in Masonic circles of Ohio, died of a heart attack yesterday noon while on the way home from church.

Although he had been in apparent good health, friends believed that he was ill when he attended services at First Christian church. Apparently unable to continue home, he stopped at the Seaman residence, 212 South Mulberry street, where he died a few minutes later. Dr. D. C. Lavender, acting coroner, was called and said death was due to a heart attack.

Mr. Hughes resided at 110 Glessner avenue, the house in which he was born on Nov. 13, 1878, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes. His sister, Mrs. Millie Stambaugh, was stricken with a heart attack and died on the sidewalk a short distance from the Glessner avenue home last Sept. 7.

With Thomas Keenan, Mr. Hughes founded the manufacturing company in 1904, with a plant on North Mulberry street. At first they manufactured small structural iron and conducted a boiler repair shop. Their first major contract was the present viaduct on South Mulberry street. Later Mr. Hughes purchased the Keenan interests and the plant was moved to its present site on Newman street.

Mr. Hughes was a member of all Masonic bodies of Mansfield and Scottish Rite of Dayton. He served the Baku Grotto as monarch a few years ago and in 1936 was president of the Ohio State Grotto association. During his

POLICE POSSES BLOCK ROADS IN MICHIGAN

Kansas Outlaws Abduct Two Farmers, Escape After Gun Battle With Officers.

BLOOD FOUND IN AUTO

One of Fugitives Believed Wounded; Fifty Squad Cars Patrol Highways.

BULLETIN

GRIFFITH, Ind.—(INS)—In an automobile loaded with dynamite, two Kansas bandits, who terrorized southern Michigan and northern Indiana today, speeded toward Chicago Heights, Ill., this afternoon after releasing three men they had kidnaped.

(By United Press)

PAW PAW, Mich. — State police blocked southwest Michigan highways today in search for two Kansas outlaws who kidnaped two farmers, stole two automobiles, and engaged in a running gun battle with officers.

Fifty squad cars guarded roads around Kalamazoo county and checked hospitals in the belief that police had wounded one of the bandits.

Unaccounted for yet were Henry Metty and Claud Mennis, farmers of near Vicksburg who were kidnaped by the desperadoes in their flight.

Fire on Fleeing Car.

Troopers at Paw Paw said that Bennis Dixon, 27, wanted in Kansas on assault and Dyer act violation charges, and an unidentified companion had answered gunfire of state police when they were sighted near Mendon, Mich., early today. They had been followed from Mottville after a request for their apprehension had been received from Kansas police. They were believed headed from Topeka, Kan., to Detroit.

With a .30-.30 rifle, troopers said, the bandits flattened two tires of a pursuing state police car and thus managed to escape.

Traced to Farm.

Troopers traced the pair to Metty's farm nine miles southeast of Vicksburg, where they commandeered another automobile and took Metty as hostage. At the Mennis farm nearby they stopped for gasoline and forced Mennis to accompany them.

4TH SESSION?

Columbus Hears Davey to Call Legislature for Dec. 15.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Rumors, as yet entirely unconfirmed and in fact discounted in some quarters, persisted in the capital today that the legislature would be called back on December 15 for its fourth special session.

Ohio's schools face huge deficits because of inadequate financing of public school foundation program, and this is being used by some members of the general assembly in urging Gov. Martin L. Davey to recall the legislature.

It was reported that the governor was willing to consider the step only if assured that several major appointments which the senate previously refused to confirm would be acted upon favorably.

There has been no comment from Davey himself on reports of a December 15 special session.

Army Calls Conference on Mobilization of Industry

10,000 PLANTS TO BE LINKED IN WAR PLANS

180 Officers Convene This Week to Outline New U. S. Defense Measures.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The war department has summoned about 180 officers to a conference Thursday and Friday on its program for mobilizing industry in event of war, thus lending new emphasis today to the administration's accelerated defense program.

Other armament developments included:

1. Secretary Woodring's urgent recommendations that the Panama Canal be made "impregnable" hinted at new reinforcements for that vital link.

2. Senator Clark, (D-Mo) served notice that advocates of an expanded armaments program would encounter critical and determined opposition in the new congress

Initial Move.

War department officials said the conference on industrial mobilization was the first of its kind nationally and would be attended by procurement planning specialists of the army, navy and marine corps. They are the men responsible for detailed arrangements to obtain munitions and supplies.

Complete even to contract forms to avoid confusion and delay, the "M-Day" (mobilization day) procurement plans have been in preparation since the World war. They include the specific functions to be performed by about 10,000 plants.

Woodring's plea for strengthening the Panama Canal fortifications went to President Roosevelt in the secretary's annual report Defense of the canal, the means by which the navy undertakes to protect both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts with a single fleet, long has been a matter of personal concern to Mr. Roosevelt.

Military authorities said that during 1938 the army and navy have dispatched men, guns, planes and warships to make the 50-mile channel between the Atlantic and Pacific stronger than ever.

Woodring told the president it must be made even safer.

"All locks and dams on that vital waterway must be made bombproof," he said. The possibility of sabotage by crews of ships transiting the canal must be completely eliminated.

"We must greatly augment our air forces and our anti-aircraft installations in the Panama Canal zone. The Panama Canal must be made impregnable."

Senator Clark expressed in an interview his personal opposition to a large part of "this talk about the need for more national defense." He charged that militarists and "super-navy" groups were using "war hysteria as a cover for another pump priming program designed to aid heavy industry."

Illness Forces Players' Director To Take Lead Role

The illness today of one of the members of the cast of the Community Players' first production of the season, "The Queen's Husband," will force Mrs. Helen Bacon, director, to "double in brass" when the show is presented tomorrow night at Senior high school auditorium.

Besides supervising the play from back stage, Mrs. Bacon will play the queen, a major role, in which Mrs. Joseph Montgomery has been rehearsing. Mrs. Montgomery became ill over the week-end and was forced to withdraw from the cast.

Linley Smith, who played in several of the earlier productions of the Players, has the title role of King Eric and will be seen opposite Mrs. Bacon. The juvenile leads will be played by Richard Nixon and Miss Sanchon Cutter.

Tickets may be reserved at the Tawse pharmacy.

Up and Down THE STREET

An old-fashioned sleigh, drawn by two ponies equipped with bells, revived memories of a past generation Sunday afternoon as the vehicle glided along Maple street. Other sleighs were reported on snow-covered rural roads near the city as farm residents brought the vehicles out of storage for a Sunday afternoon ride.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Goeckus, 358 Second avenue, have started on the kind of a trip that many people dream of but few are ever privileged to take. They will travel with a couple from California who are making a two-year trip around the world. Mr. and Mrs. Goeckus will serve as chauffeur and household manager, respectively. They went to California last week. They will drive to Texas, down through Mexico and Central America and Panama, and then down the west coast of South America and across to Africa.

While most Mansfielders' thoughts are far from next summer's vacation, Miss Naomi Stutz, secretary at John Simpson junior high school, already has her plans laid for the summer, although there is still six more months of school. She has arranged with Columbia university, New York, to return there for the third consecutive summer as secretary in the Lincoln school, one of the university's experimental schools.

Evidentally it takes more than a Sunday afternoon to discourage amateur camera addicts. Yesterday a bus filled with members of a Toledo camera club came to the city in search of choice winter scenes. After "snapping" Mansfield, they continued on to the Loudonville hills before returning home.

Pittsburgher Talks Tomorrow to C. of C. Members.

About 150 persons are expected to hear Henry W. Stanley, Pittsburgh when he speaks tomorrow evening at a membership dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Stanley will talk on "Trade Expansion," a subject intended most specifically for C. of C. members engaged in retail selling. He is trade expansion director of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and held a similar post in Dallas, Tex.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Mansfield C. of C. said the dinner would start promptly at 6:30, in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and that the program would be speeded up to permit those attending to attend the Community Play at the high school.

Williams said the program would be concluded by 8:25, and that the Community Play curtain had been delayed until 8:40 to permit persons to attend both events.

PLAN FAILS TO OPEN STOCKYARD

A. F. of L. Workers Don't Show Up at Scheduled Hour.

CHICAGO —(AP)— An attempt by American Federation of Labor Workers to operate the Chicago stockyards in the face of a strike called by the CIO apparently failed today.

Thomas Devero, business agent of Local 517 of the All Livestock Handlers union, had guaranteed to have between 150 and 200 men at work in the huge yards by 6 a. m.

More than three hours after that time, Orvis T. Henkle, general manager of the Union Stock Yard and Transit company, announced not a man had reported for work. Trading still was suspended, and livestock receipts were about one-tenth of normal.

DEFENDS GAME SEARCH IN CARS

Conservation Official Says Permission Obtained First From Motorists.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Declaring that the rights of private citizens had not been violated, the state conservation division today attacked an opinion rendered by Franklin county Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett to the effect that the division's game blockades were illegal.

"We have never forcibly searched a hunter's automobile," declared Robert Johnson, secretary to Conservation Commissioner Larry Woodell.

"In every instance we have merely stopped the car and have asked permission to search the car. If that permission has not been forthcoming we have asked the driver to pull over to the side of the road while we went after a search warrant."

Johnson said that John W. Bricker, when he was attorney-general rendered an opinion that the blockades, as they were conducted, were legal.

Seeking to curtail ruthless destruction of game and failure to heed game-law limits, the conservation division established the blockade system two years ago.

Assisted by the state highway patrol and county peace officers, the division has stopped thousands of cars during the hunting seasons of the past three years.

Hundreds have been arrested, thousands of dollars in fines levied and numerous licenses, automobiles and guns confiscated.

The division maintains that an effective system of blockade is the only means to end flagrant violation of the bag-limit laws.

'PHANTOM SLASHER' ADDS 11TH VICTIM TO ATTACKS IN HALIFAX

(By Associated Press)

HALIFAX, England—Women of this grimy North England town today were ordered to remain indoors after nightfall because of a "phantom slasher" who strikes unseen along darkened by-ways.

The slasher added an eleventh victim to his list early this morning, slipping up behind Mrs. Constance Wood, a mill worker, only a few yards from her doorway.

He knocked her down, hacked through her heavy coat to inflict two gashes in her left arm, and escaped.

Police have been unable to trace the slasher who has attacked eleven persons within the past seven days. All but two of the victims were women. None was wounded seriously.

Screams from one of two women who were slashed last night brought nearby firemen to the rescue. Crowds leaving church joined the hunt but without success.

It was feared the phantom, who so far only has wounded his victims with a sharp-edged weapon, might suddenly turn murderer.

Women of this industrial town, at least those brave enough still to venture out at night, were arming themselves with large hatpins, bags of pepper and walking-sticks for self-defense.

Patrols of boy scouts were pressed into service.

The only clue to the slasher's identity has come from one of the women victims who described him as having "staring eyes and a big mouth" which she said she would recognize again.

It was expected troops would be brought in soon if other measures fail to catch him.

ICE UNSAFE

Parks Chief Warns Skaters About North Lake.

Mansfield winter sports enthusiasts today were warned against attempting to skate at North Lake park due to the unsafe condition of the ice.

Jacob Rahm, city superintendent of parks, stated today that the ice is unsafe in sections of the lake and to permit skating at this time might delay conditioning of the ice for the future. Signs will be posted at the lake when skating will be permitted, he said.

Despite the ban on skating, the city's winter sports activities got under way over the week-end at Middle park. More than 300 persons joined in the skiing and toboggoning parties at the park Sunday afternoon, Norman Kellogg, who is assisting city officials in mapping out a winter recreation program, said.

FOUND DEAD BY RAILROAD TRACK

Robert Painter, Loudonville, Believed To Have Been Hit by Train.

LONDONVILLE—The mangled body of Robert Painter, 30, of Loudonville, was found early today along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks between the Spring street and Water street crossing.

Painter's body was found at 7:45 a. m. by E. L. Mack, section foreman of the railroad. It is believed that Painter was struck by a train at the Spring street crossing. He was employed at a poolroom and restaurant here.

The body was taken to the Swank funeral home pending funeral arrangements. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. John Janda and a brother of Loudonville, and a sister, Mrs. Marion Damon of Berea.

JURY CONVICTS FOUR IN COAST KIDNAPING CASE

Physician Pleading Unwritten Law Says He'll Fight Life Sentence Verdict.

(By United Press)

OLYMPIA, Wash.—Dr. Kent W. Berry, 50, society physician, who avenged himself outside the law on the man he accused of seducing his young wife, regarded the probability of life imprisonment philosophically today. He told the jury which convicted him of kidnaping and assault that it had done "the best" it could.

The jury also convicted the three men Berry hired to help him kidnap and torture Irving E. Baker, former Coast Guard officer. It recommended leniency, so Berry will escape the death sentence which the Washington kidnap law carries. He will be sentenced soon to life imprisonment.

The state called Berry a "jealous old fool," maintained that his accusation of Baker was unjustified. Berry had taken Baker to a gravel pit where he tried to emasculate him with a pair of pliers.

Robert H. Smith, William Macalon and James Reddick were convicted with him.

He'll Fight Case.

Berry, consoling his wife who ran to him after the jury reported yesterday, shouted to reporters:

"The whole thing is a frameup. The authorities would not permit me to swear out a warrant against Baker, and told me to take matters into my own hands. Of course I'll appeal."

Berry indicated that he would appeal because the court specified that the "unwritten law" had no bearing on the case, and on the premise that abduction of Baker was not kidnaping under Washington law because no ransom was asked.

Smith testified that he kept the doctor from using his scalpel on Baker. He had hoped for a second degree assault conviction only, the maximum penalty for which is a 10-year prison term. The jury convicted him of both assault and kidnaping.

Redick, a taxi driver, and Macaloon, a town marshal, were supplied public defenders and their appeal depend on the court's granting state funds for it. They were convicted of first degree assault.

Sentence was expected within two weeks. All defendants have been held in $25,000 cash bail.

DANCE WINNER

Galion Couple Victor in Third Jitterbug Elimination.

Seven couples took part in the third of a series of jitterbug jamborees Saturday night at the Ohio theater in which a Galion couple emerged as winner.

Practically all of the contestants used variations of the shag for their competing dance and at the end of the contest, with the audience acting as judge, it was almost a toss-up between the Galion couple and the second prize winners who were from Mansfield.

Don Thornton and Ruth Greene, Galion, were awarded first prize of $10, with Tony Teafilo and Betty Manning, second prize winners, receiving $7.50. Third prize of $5 went to Camille Alacca and Therese Hoppe, who also were winners in one of the other elimination contests. Only first place winners are barred from other contests

FAIR ENOUGH!

After All An Individual Is Entitled To Privacy, Even From Newspapers

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I don't know what is coming over me, but I find myself growing more and more reasonable day by day. Specifically, I have come to believe that newspapers and newspapermen should respect the privacy of individuals, and that, in the case of a Lindbergh or a Garbo who wants to be let alone, the press has no mandate from the people to harass them for statements and photographs.

* * *

This is quite a change of view from that of my cub days in Chicago, when the picture-chaser was an important member of the staff, and the craft took mischievous pride in the strategems by which photographs were obtained of people who were in the news. Too often people break into the news merely by reason of their relationship to someone who has got into trouble with the law or with some female and, although themselves completely innocent, are paraded in the lineup, so to speak.

* * *

Recently Greta Garbo returned from Europe and, against her will, submitted to a mass interview. She was not ill-treated in the copy, so far as I observed, but one New York paper ran a picture of her next day which obviously was selected for spite. It was a horrible picture of a woman whose face is her fortune, and if there is no such thing as libel by picture, then this was a case in which the law was an ass.

The picture was so bad that it just could not have been selected for any other reason than to get hunk with Miss Garbo for her aloofness in the past, and if there were a law I do not doubt that Miss Garbo could prove malice.

The newspaper photographers have a hard job, which would be made no easier by the establishment of the individual's right not to be photographed. Yet that should be the right of individuals, and they should have the means to enforce it.

* * *

Of course, methods have changed for the better in 25 years, and tricks which were used back around the outbreak of the big war have been forgotten. There has been a voluntary reform, but the development of the camera has created new problems and abuses, and they need to be considered for the good of the newspaper business itself.

I believe it was fair to ask Lindbergh if it was true that he was engaged to marry Miss Morrow that time, but plainly it was his right to give no answer. There was an assumption that he belonged to the public and that, therefore, he had an obligation to discuss his private affairs for publication. But he didn't actually belong to the public, and, although it is personally embarrassing to a reporter to receive an icy stare in reply to a question, that, after all, is one of the occupational hazards and does not justify reprisals.

* * *

There have been cases in which persons who merely did not want to talk or be photographed have been chased on foot and in cabs and compelled to dodge in freight elevators and assume disguises. Servants have been bribed to assist in such pursuits, and often the stories have nothing but inquisitiveness for their excuse. No actual news of legitimate interest to the public is involved in many such incidents.

In criminal cases there should be more latitude, I suppose, because crime is news, but, even so, it must be recognized that the papers are not police agencies, and certainly the children or wife of a person accused of some wrong do not automatically forfeit all rights. I am not sure what these rights are, but they should be defined as clearly as they can be and then respected.

It is grief enough to be a member of a family in deep trouble without the additional punishment of the pillory, and it would ease rather than complicate the problems of reporters and photographers to acknowledge that certain types of assignments are not legitimate and to abandon a phase of newspaper work which does the public no good and harms the newspaper business.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Some say Swing is passing out. But Hollywood doesn't believe it. Hollywood is set for a ride in a jitterbuggy. Hollywood is going to bring it back, if it's gone. Or give it the coupe de grace, if it's going.

For a long time now the "influence" has been apparent in pictures. Young ones, old ones—it's supposed to be especially funny when the old ones do it—have been truck-ing and Suzy Q-ing either en masse or for single "characterizing" shots. (Venerable Harry Davenport does it effectively, in this manner, in "The Cowboy and the Lady," and so does Gary Cooper.)

The Dead End Kids did a little of it in "Angels With Dirty Faces." The Little Tough Guys, not to be out-trucked, are showing their stuff in "In Society." There's a picture at Universal—with Ted Weems and his orchestra—called "Swing, Sister, Swing." There'll be swing in "Ice Follies," and swing (a la Ritz) in "The Three Musketeers." The movie, "St. Louis Blues," is full of it, with Matty Malneck and his boys providing the hot licks. Dick Powell's new one, "Always Leave Them Laughing," is concerned with the transformation of a classical musician into a jitterbug. Maxine Sullivan has left her blue notes in several of the new pictures. "The Wizard of Oz" has a Jitterbug Song.

* * *

Which is all very well—for the swingaloons. The rest of us can have our jitterbug jamboree in waltz-time—in "The Great Waltz." That sequence showing how the Vienna villagers succumbed to the waltz is as frantic jitterbugging as ever you'll see today—but in good waltz-time.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers are doing nothing to contribute to the longevity of swing. Not this time. In "The Castles" they haven't even any new dances. Just the old ones that Irene and Vernon danced and made popular

Hermes Pan, who looks like Fred and helps with the Astaire-Rogers dance routines, says the Texas Tommy might catch on again. Also the Maxixe—although that's more difficult. Irene Castle today thinks jitterbugging will pass. She doesn't like it. But if she said so she'd be thought a back number—which she isn't. She doesn't say so.

Hermes Pan, a tender-hearted guy, is having his troubles. The big chorus numbers of yesterday are gone from the screen. The other day he had to select 60 steppers for a series of dance shots showing how Castle dancing influenced the world.

"Two years ago," he said, "the girls were so busy I couldn't have found 60. Today I ask for 60 and 500 girls apply."

He knows most of the girls, but he has to look through them when he's selecting. He can't hire all of them. It breaks him up. He wishes the "big numbers" would come back, but thinks they won't—not soon.

The movie Castles—while most of Hollywood is on the jitterbuggy—will do the Tango too. Sonja Henie, a smart girl, is doing a tango on ice in her new touring show. She'll put it in her picture, and she'll be making it about the time "The Castles" is showing. That ought to underscore the tango heavily.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Attention To Detail Makes Awkward Age Fun

The new monk silhouette with soft fullness breaking over the hips has been adapted to frocks for the "awkward age," which often needs to conceal figure faults. Here you see it, made for Miss Fourteen-Year-Old, in soft haze blue wool and trimmed with a white angora edging.

Clothes for the "awkward age"—thirteen to sixteen—have received new attention from designers this year. One of them suggests this simple frock of gray-blue sheer wool crepe topped with a hood lined in deeper blue which may be worn hanging down the back like a cowl.

Try Using Good Manners In Bad Winter Weather

By JOAN DURHAM

You're likely to get a very cold shoulder if you don't watch your cold weather manners.

The easiest way to nominate yourself for most-disliked member of a group is to go in for fresh air in a great big way when nobody else in the house—or office—backs you up in your idosyncracy. And the quickest means of putting yourself in the worst graces of your favorite hostess is to tramp over her best rug in your galoshes or throw a snow-laden coat over her favorite chair.

Lest you forget, when the mercury takes a sudden drop, here are a few cold-weather reminders:

Be careful to close doors behind you. One door left ajar carelessly can send room temperature to a low level in a few minutes. That goes for outside doors, storm doors and doors between rooms.

Don't insist on maintaining unusual temperatures in rooms you share with others. Remember that 68 to 72 degrees is considered a comfortable temperature for most living quarters. If you go in for ice-weather take it where you can find it—out of doors. If you are susceptible to chills wear warmer clothing; don't try to keep a room so warm that everyone else swelters.

Keep sneezes to yourself. If you develop a bad cold stay away from others as much as possible. When you feel a sneeze coming on, prepare to catch it in your handkerchief.

Don't count on borrowing galoshes, raincoats or other wet weather accessories. Lay in your own supply—and distribute it between your office and your home so you won't be caught in an emergency. If you do have to borrow when a sudden storm comes up, return the borrowed property as soon as possible.

Hints to the weather-bound hostess:

Leave a broom outside the front door so visitors can brush the snow off their feet.

Try serving hot tea, coffee, chocolate or even bouillon—to your refugees from the storm.

FOR FUR TIES.

PARIS—(AP)—Taffeta is tops to make tie sashes for fur coats. Lanvin uses black taffeta on a waist-length coat of black Persian lamb, tying it in wide girdle effect around the hips. Weil finishes a long brown seal coat with a brown taffeta sash which fastens in once-over style at center-front.

* * *

FUR HOODS.

PARIS—(AP)—The new fur hoods match some other item of the costume. Molyneux shows one in beaver to match a beaver muff. Schiaparelli designs one in silver fox to go with a navy blue suit having silver fox pockets.

Conversational Club Sponsors Annual Blind Sale Next Week

FOLLOWING the custom of preceding years one of the Mansfield clubs affiliated with the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs will sponsor the annual sale for the blind which is being held at the R. B. Maxwell company in the basement of the store the entire week of Dec. 5. The club sponsoring this year is the Conversational club.

At noon today members of the welfare committee of the Mansfield Federation of Women met at the Women's Club for luncheon, and to make final plans for the sale in the city. Mrs. Elmer Post is chairman of the committee.

She is assisted by Mrs. Ambrose Middleton, Mrs. James Bailey, Mrs. Joseph Johnston, Mrs. Fred Nixon, Mrs. Carl Henkel and Mrs. Sidney Palmer.

The purpose of the sale, at which articles made by blind persons are sold, is to promote home handicraft among the blind, and aid them in making a living. Each year the clubs in this city affiliated with the Federation sponsor this sale.

Members of the Conversational club who are directly in charge of the sale are Mrs. James H. Boyd, jr., Mrs. Fannie Carrier, Mrs. Paul W. Endriss, Mrs. Richard Fishback, Mrs. Merritt A. Giles, Mrs. George W. Hypes, Mrs. L. L. Kochenderfer, Mrs. H. N. Kroegher, Mrs. Wilmot W. Peirce, Mrs. Eugene Smart, Mrs. Walter W. Willis, and Mrs. W. E. Wygant.

RED TOUCHES.

PARIS—(AP)—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, wife of the American Ambassador to Great Britain, has ordered among other ensembles for winter a model in black touched up with red. The coat is black velvet trimmed with black otter, and the dress is black marocain crepe with lines of red defining a pattern through the bodice. Red is seen again, facing a cluster of pleats let in at the side of skirt. Paquin designed this.

* * *

TASSELS OUST BUTTONS.

PARIS—(AP)—Tassels are filling the role of buttons on many a new winter costume. Their latest efforts apply to a glamorous bridal gown of heavy satin brocade having a cloque pattern and cut on straight lines falling into a train. Neck and sleeves were fastened with tiny white silk tassels. This was a Schiaparelli model, finished off with a veil falling from an embroidered satin bonnet.

* * *

BUTTONED BOOTS.

PARIS—(AP)—Donna Aimee de Sa Simoes Lopes, a beautiful Brazilian and discovery, they say, of Elsa Maxwell, has an extensive wardrobe selected at Paquin's. Among the models is a black velvet evening gown, hiked up at one side to show a lining of flame colored velvet, and quite incidentally, high-button boots or bottines in the same flaming red.

* * *

ROUND-YOKE.

PARIS—(AP)—The newest fur coats on the swagger order have round yokes. Max makes one in nutria, and cuts the round yoke in one piece with sleeve caps. Weil makes a black sealskin swagger, falling very full below the round-yoke back. A mink coat with round yoke is accompanied by a Tuxedo collar and extremely large full sleeves.

SCARED RABBIT.

PARIS—(AP)—"Scared rabbit" fur is a zebra dyed skin Vera Borean uses. It looks like black and white zebra, and at the same time strongly resembles the timid bunny. On a suit of rough black wool material, it makes the revers, pockets and buttons. On a black wool ensemble it fashions waist-long revers for the coat and deep cuffs for the dress. The coat sleeves are slightly short, showing the "zebra" dress cuffs.

Cheating Best Way To Lose Man

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
(One In a Series)

It's by no means always a girl's fault if she falls just short of winning a man's love. Fate may defeat her in a thousand ways. However, I can think of no more unnecessary way of losing out in the love-game than by failing to play square.

Six Ways To Lose Him, Or Her.

It seems harsh to say that a girl who tells lies to her lover, and flirts with other men behind his back, deserves to lose him. But isn't it perhaps the melancholy truth?

The worst of it is that other women, in the friendliest spirit, may have foolishly advised her to do this very thing.

"Don't let him be too sure of you," whisper the expert man-hunters.

There's a wee kernel of practical sense, I'll admit, in these ancient maxims, cruel as they may sound. Coquetry has its place in the age-old game of love. A girl whose hope is to be adored should not present herself in the role of a doormat. A few graceful feints, or perhaps even an innocent bit of play-acting, may increase her apparent desirability and reduce the enraptured lover to the necessary state of pulp.

In conceding this much, I am far from counselling actual deceit. On the contrary, I am emphatically warning girls against it. You know the kind of deceit I mean: telling the man who is in love with you or almost in love with you that you have to go to see a sick aunt in a hospital and then sneaking out for the evening with another man.

The danger, of course, is not from any violence; it's the danger, rather, of losing a man and his love. A man who is deeply interested in a girl, even if he hasn't actually admitted to himself that he has fallen in love, has sharpened senses. Because he cares for her, he can feel when she is tricking him and he suffers accordingly.

Ordinarily a man takes it for granted that the girl he is interested in is honest with him. He accepts what she does and believes what she says and has the nice, sweet, comfy feeling of trusting her.

So, if he discovers that she is not being sincere, that she is double-crossing him, even if in unimportant ways, something happens. The stream of emotion becomes paralyzed. He may ask for an explanation, a show-down. It is much more likely that, wounded and angry, he will fade out of the picture altogether. His illusions gone, he will count the chapter finished.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, November 29.

A VERY lively and propitious state of affairs is predicted by the predominant stellar operations. There is a sign of much gainful activity in business, with the assured co-operation of those in places of power and standing, who may demonstrate their friendly interest with substantial generosity. This is bound to expand the financial status and enhance personal popularity and prestige. But discretion in all private correspondence and other relations is enjoined.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a very prosperous and interesting year, with business increased and personal prestige and popularity definitely enhanced. Influential persons figure in this, with promotion, friendly personal interest or financial co-operation. But discretion is enjoined, especially in writings and intimate contacts, as dangers lurk.

A child born on this day may be talented, progressive and ambitious, and with its large ideas, expansive objectives and pleasant disposition, it is assured notable success.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Thank heaven! you are all wrong, Mary," I said when I could speak calmly. "Hank is all right. You are torturing yourself needlessly—"

She interrupted me ruthlessly. "Uncle Dicky didn't tell everything that Dr. T. said when he was appearing to give us all the low down on it," she said. "I knew by the funny quirk in the corner of his mouth that always is there when he's lying," she said calmly.

Her eyes were holding mine expectantly, and I spoke quickly.

"He wasn't lying, Mary," I said defensively, as a loyal wife should. "He simply didn't tell you everything that Dr. T. had said. Every word that he did tell you was the truth. Hank is not in any particular peril at present. He can go back to school, but he is restricted in his smoking, must eat more and must stop cheating the regular school routine by reading in bed with a flashlight beneath the covers."

"What else did Dr. T. say?" she asked. "All of it, if you don't mind."

"I doubt if anybody save Hank and the specialist could tell you all of it," I retorted. "Your uncle said only that he 'guessed Dr. T. had scared Hank out of a year's growth by telling him just what was the matter with him, and painting the probable consequences of his continuing to indulge his propensity to cruelty."

The color drained suddenly from Mary's face.

"Oh! the poor kid!" she exclaimed comprehendingly. "So that was what was eating him in the torture scene. He must have figured that in a few more years he'd be just like that horrible devil of a rajah, or whatever he was."

She stopped and looked at me fixedly.

"You can't imagine how relieved I am."

"Oh! yes, I can," I returned cheerily. "I'm much relieved myself. I'm sure Hank is going to be all right now, and I am so happy to think your uncle managed it so that Hank does not suspect we know anything about it. He believes that only he and Dr. T. have any idea of the truth."

"Yes, poor kid!" his sister said with compassionate understanding. "He'd simply curl up and die if he thought we had the slightest suspicion of the real state of things. I don't imagine he'd mind Bill so much, but the rest of us! Phew!"

She was looking at me again, and I knew that there was one last question on her lips.

"Yes, dear," I said encouragingly.

"Don't you think it was a good sign that Hank was so horrified at that horrible scene?" she asked.

"Indeed I do," I replied promptly. "But now, if you please, suppose we say good-bye to Hank's problem, which stands in a fair way of being solved, and begin getting ready for our trip to Noel's hotel."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

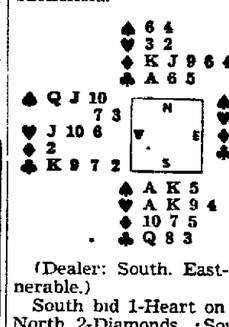
"The Authority on Authorities"

SPIKING THE GUNS

INSTEAD OF WORKING on your own side's suit, it is sometimes better to concentrate on crippling the declarer's. Knocking out the dummy's single side entry can have this effect, like spiking the enemy's guns on a battlefield.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South bid 1-Heart on this deal, North 2-Diamonds, South 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

The spade Q was led by West and won with South's K. The diamond 10 was finessed and lost. East returned the spade 9 Declarer ducked this lead but won the next with the spade A. Then the diamond J was played and won by East, who returned the heart 5. South won and cashed his four remaining diamonds and the club A.

East had a chance to set the contract by postponing the return of his partner's suit until he had knocked the club A out of the dummy, while he retained the diamond A. Then when declarer led the second round of diamonds, East should have refused to win. Taking the third round would then have prevented declarer from cashing the diamonds and obtaining sufficient tricks to make his contract, which East's play allowed him to do.

Get Out of Rut With Body Care

By MME. QUI VIVE

If you must be melancholy you can't expect to be beautiful.

What's to be done? One can complain and make somebody else miserable. That's what most of us do. Pick a fight when we're just mad at ourselves. No progress along those lines. I think the quickest cure for depressed feelings is a grand pick-up spree. If you look better you're bound to feel better.

* * *

Fill the bath tub with fairly hot water, soak and steam some of the sullenness out of you. Close your eyes, relax. Warmth and moisture act upon drooping spirits as they favorably affect tired muscles and jangling nerves. They soothe and comfort. They bring rest.

Get out the biggest bath brush you have, cover it with soap suds, and give yourself a brisk scouring. That treatment helps the skin to function, awakens the very la little blood stream. Low spirits slow up the body functions. Get the circulatory system into a state of activity and it will sweep the clouds from your mind.

This isn't twaddle, little one. There is a close bond between mind and body, as any good old family Doc will tell you.

* * *

Give yourself a rubdown with eau de cologne. Put on fresh undies, the best you have, and your cutest shoes. Slip on the frock in which you look prettiest and seek jolly company. Find friends who laugh. All you need is be separated from your thoughts long enough for pleasant thoughts to move in and take control.

The woman whose life is much the same each day, who goes through a routine that is not particularly interesting, is likely to fall into ditches of depression. That she cannot afford to do. She will wrinkle, go grey, get grouchy. A terrible prospect. After all contentment and happiness are life's main objectives.

My Neighbor Says:

Do not allow house plants that have frozen to thaw too quickly. They should be sprayed with ice cold water, shaded from sunshine and kept from fire heat until the frost has very slowly disappeared.

Rust stains may be removed from washable materials by: (1) rinsing the soiled garment in cold water; (2) sprinkling the stains with lemon juice; (3) then covering the stained area with a thin layer of salt, and (4) letting the garment or material lie out in the sun for two days before it is washed again. Grass stains may be removed with alcohol.

THEATERS

THE Norma Shearer role in "Idiot's Delight" is seen as a far cry from what you have seen her do recently. As the youthful Juliet and the tragic queen of Louis XIV she was in the tradition of one of Hollywood's greatest actresses, but in "Idiot's Delight," an early sequence actually shows her as a circus acrobat hanging by her teeth. She later acquires glamor and a Russian accent. Clark Gable, who first rose to fame in a Norma Shearer picture, "A Free Soul," will be co-starred with her in the Robert Sherwood satire.

* * *

News Hound and Heiress.

An attempt to recapture the sophisticated romance between a reporter and a mad cap run-away heiress which first came into vogue with "It Happened One Night," is made in the Fredric March - Virginia Bruce picture, "There Goes My Heart," at the Madison. March is the news hound who chases the heiress, first for a story and then for herself, with interludes at parks and carnivals. Patsy Kelly makes for comedy.

"The Citadel."

A J Cronin's stirring novel, "The Citadel," which continues to be among America's best-sellers and has sold more than a half million abroad, has been made into a picture by M-G-M at its British studio in England. Robert Donat has the role of the young doctor who is a rebel against the ethics of the modern medical profession, with Rosalind Russell as the school teacher who marries him and shares his early poverty. "The Citadel" opens at the Ohio tomorrow for five days.

* * *

England in India.

Patrick Knowles, who made his film debut in "Charge of the Light Brigade," is seen in another story of England's valor in "Storm Over Bengal," at the Park. The story concerns a rebellion against English authority in northwest India, and the love of two brothers for a girl who is betrothed to the elder brother. Richard Cromwell and Rochelle Hudson are in the cast. "Love Before Breakfast," with Carole Lombard, is the second feature.

* * *

A Million for a Girl.

A millionaire who is willing to give a million for happiness and real friends finds a lot of takers in "I'll Give a Million," at the Ritz. Warner Baxter is the man who throws away a million dollars and finds in return a pretty girl who is the symbol of all that he's been looking for. Marjorie Weaver is the girl. The film is being shown at the Ritz, with "The Crowd Roars," a Robert Taylor picture which also has Maureen O'Sullivan.

* * *

"Strange Faces."

Entertainment in the comedy vein and a fast moving story will be found in "Strange Faces," a comedy melodrama with Dorothea Kent, Frank Jenks and Andy Devine, which is booked for the Majestic for three days, starting Tuesday. Rival reporters, a man from a New York paper and a girl on a small town sheet, seek a story about a gangster hiding out in the small town. "Hideaway Girl," a romance with Martha Raye in a comedy role, is the second feature.

Curtain Calls End Season

Records of Eight Unmarred

Irish Play U. S. C. Saturday

OLD MAN PIGSKIN, co-starred with Miss Upset in the 1938 football drama takes a couple of curtain calls this week although the play itself ended with last Saturday's climactic scene.

The curtain dropped on a cast that had only eight important members whose performances throughout the two-months' show were perfect. Duke and Tennessee of the south, Georgetown of the east, Notre Dame and Oklahoma of the mid west and Texas Christian of the southwest were the principal actors who suffered neither a defeat nor a tie. In the main supporting roles were Western Reserve and Texas Tech, both with perfect records. Villanova was tied once but unbeaten.

Ten other teams had unbeaten, untied seasons, but they took only the walk-on roles in the big show. Two which previously had been tied but undefeated suffered their first defeats during the past week. Utah, Rocky Mountain Big Seven champion, lost 16-0 to Idaho Thanksgiving day and Boston college took a 29-7 durbbing from Holy Cross Saturday.

The main roles in this week's curtain piece will be played by Notre Dame, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Texas Tech. The fighting Irish, after a week off, go west to meet Southern California, co-champion of the Pacific Coast conference and likely choice as western team to play in the Rose Bowl Jan. 2. Oklahoma, winner of the Big Six title, meets an often-beaten Washington State team at Norman, Okla. Tennessee defends its Southeastern conference crown against Mississippi. The Vols can't be beaten mathematically, but since the title is unofficial, Coach Bob Neyland says he won't claim it unless the Vols beat Ole Miss. Texas Tech, 21-2 winner over Marquette, takes on Centenary.

Other outstanding contests listed this week are today's South Carolina-Catholic university game at Washington, postponed Saturday because of snow; Miami-Georgia Friday and on Saturday Florida-Temple, Rice-Southern Methodist to wind up the Southwest conference season, and North Carolina State-Citadel in the Southern conference finale.

* * * * *

Next Task Is to Select "Bowl" Elevens.

THE next task is the selection of performers for Rose, Cotton, Sugar and other year-end "bowl" games. The Pacific Coast conference will name its Rose Bowl representative today. That team then must choose its eastern rival.

For that choice it appears difficult now to overlook either Duke or Texas Christian, which completed remarkable season's last Saturday.

The Blue Devils showed their might by taking over Pittsburgh, 7-0, just as they had disposed of eight other rivals. Texas Christian, with an unusual display of ground power for their air-minded Southwest conference, routed Southern Methodist, 20-7, to take the conference crown. The Horned Frogs immediately were invited to play in the Cotton Bowl game but delayed answering.

Notre Dame, with a definite policy against post-season games, is off the list of "bowl" possibilities. Oklahoma, which rang up its 13th consecutive victory by whipping Oklahoma A. & M., 19-0, hasn't made known its attitude. Neither has Tennessee, concentrating on the Mississippi game after routing its old hoodoo, Kentucky, 46-0, last Thursday. Georgetown and Western Reserve are being considered as possible rivals for New Mexico in the Sun Bowl.

Bank Rolls Crippled by Pitt Defeat.

IF ALL the red faces and crippled bank rolls were laid end to end, they'd stretch from Durham, N. C., to Rose Bowl, Calif., today . . . Yes sir, Mr. Wallace Wade's Dukes really have it, in case you haven't heard . . . Undefeated, untied, unscored upon and unrecognized 'till they put Pitt in mothballs. . . . Also s'pose you noticed Oklahoma didn't mess with the Aggies when their running attack stymied . . . They just showed they could sail through the air with the greatest of ease, too. . . . This corner could go for a "bowl" lineup like this: Notre Dame vs. Texas Christian, Duke vs. Oklahoma, Tennessee vs. Villanova, Texas Tech vs. Georgetown, and a Carnegie-Holy Cross rematch . . . Have you any others up your sleeve? . . . Speaking of bowls, Fordham has a good chance for the sugar tilt after that shellacking of N. Y. U

Oklahoma folks are peeved puh-lenty because Sleepy Jim Crowley left the Sooners off his radio list of major unbeaten teams . . . Say Jim should be advised Oklahoma only has a 7,000 enrollment, compared to 3,000 for Notre Dame, where James was a Four-Horseman. . . . Moon Mullins, Loyola of New Orleans coach, goes Bo McMillin one better in that suggestion to have coaches call plays on the field . . . Why not have the alumni do it, says Moon—then the wolves couldn't howl so much . . . Good idea, at that.

Cagers Swing Into Action This Week-End

Moose No.1 Team Rolls Record 3330 Series In Traveling League Match With Orrville

Hipp Leads Lodge With 757 Total at Meder Lanes; Quintet Turns Out Games of 1128, 1096, 1106.

ONE of the highest totals rolled on the Meder Recreation alleys in a number of years was registered Saturday night by the Moose No. 1 team, which cracked the uprights for a 3330 count in a lodge traveling league match.

Led by Farrell Hipp, who accumulated a 757 total, the lodgemen manufactured games of 1128, 1096 and 1106 to account for the record series.

Incidentally, the string was good for three victories over Orrville, which rolled a 2501. A 104-pin handicap per game failed to give the visitors a chance in any of the games.

Only three individual games below 200 were hung up as the lodgemen literally wrecked the sticks. Brig Young got a 170 in the middle game and Mike Meder hit 199 and John Leppo a 176 in the last game.

Hipp put together games of 258, 234 and 265 for his brilliant total, which also constitutes a new season record. Art Hilborn shot a 205, 233 and 216 for a 654 total and Meder came through with a 228-225-199—652.

Young compiled a 224-170-250—644 string, with Leppo contributing games of 213, 234 and 176 for a 623.

Hipp followed Hilborn in the scoring with a 625 and Young helped with a 613. Clyde Ritter, 622, and Bill Donnellan, 600, led the Liederkranz club.

Goes to Iowa?

EDDIE ANDERSON

WORCESTER, Mass.—(U.P.)—The voluntary and unexplained resignation of Eddie Anderson after six successful years as head coach of Holy Cross football, strengthened reports today that he had accepted a similar position at the University of Iowa.

Asked if the Iowa report was true, Anderson said "I cannot say that right now." He refused to comment further. Iowa officials also refused to confirm the change.

Beaten only by Carnegie Tech this season Anderson's Crusaders climaxed a highly successful year by handing Boston college its first defeat Saturday. It gave Anderson a record at Holy Cross of 47 victories, seven losses and four ties.

* * *

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(U.P.)—University of Iowa athletic officials met today to announce a new head coach, and the sports world was certain that the new man would be Eddie Anderson, who resigned a similar post at Holy Cross last night.

Buck Shaw May Listen To Dorias Next Time.

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—(AP)—If Coach Buck Shaw of Santa Clara had played football the way Coach Gus Dorais of Detroit wanted to, Santa Clara would have won the ball game.

Playing according to the rule book, the Detroit Titans nosed out Santa Clara, 7 to 6, in a charity football game here yesterday because Santa Clara missed the try for point after touchdown. Had the game been played Dorais' style, Santa Clara would have won, 7 to 6.

Dorias wanted to forget about the point after touchdown. Instead the team making the most first downs would get the extra point in case of a tie. The Broncos made 12 first downs to four for the Titans.

DOBIE THROUGH, REPORT

NEWTON, Mass. —(INS)— The crushing 29 to 7 defeat handed Boston College by Holy Cross marked the end of the three-year coaching reign of Gilmour (Gloomy Gil) Dobie, according to reports on the Boston campus today.

Gardens Whip Slippers, 18-0

Smith's Passes Feature Win on Snow-Covered Grid.

The undefeated Forest Gardens walloped the Silver Slipper Nite club gridders, 18 to 0, on a snow-covered Taylor-Dise field before the smallest crowd of the season Sunday.

George Smith passed to J. Cervinski from the 16 for the first touchdown in the opening period. Smith's attempted placekick was blocked. He threw to Yonkovski from the 22 for the second score in the next period and the Nite club's line again blocked his kick.

Smith heaved a short pass to Long, who raced 28 yards for the final touchdown in the fourth quarter. L. Siwek's attempted kick was blocked.

The Gardens, whose goal line has been crossed only once this season, will meet the East End All-Stars at the Taylor-Dise field next Sunday.

Card Headed By Mephisto

Wahlberg Other Principal on Friday's Card.

Two popular light-heavyweights, Whitey Wahlberg of Duluth, Minn., and the Great Mephisto, will headline Friday's mat attraction in the Armory. The bout was signed over the week-end by the local Quality Club, through its matchmaker Tim Nolan, and plans were laid for a fine supporting card.

Professional wrestling returned to the local sport scene two weeks ago and promoters are freely predicting one of the finest seasons ever experienced locally. The Quality Club has injected new life into its mat activity by forming working agreements with the mat capitals of Columbus, Toledo, Chicago and Indianapolis.

Wahlberg and Mephisto are slated to wrestle for the two best falls out of a possible three, with a blanket time limit of an hour. The match should be clean, fast and hard, with nothing much to choose between the two. The former probably has an edge in physical strength, but this advantage will be offset by Mephisto's natural speed and cunning.

Two other bouts will be added to the card, which is slated to get under way at 8:30.

Tygers Invade Shelby Friday

Wide Open County League Race Looms as Quintets Prepare for Inaugural.

BASKETBALL props were moved on the sports stage and casts were being selected and rehearsed in readiness for opening performances of the new season this week-end.

The new season promises to provide game-goers in this neighborhood with an A-No. 1 brand of the winter sport, and hopes for championship seasons are high at several fronts.

Mansfield high cagers are among the teams which lift the lid this week-end, and the Tygers' followers are more encouraged than they have been for several seasons.

Of course, it is too early in the season to shout that the Tygers will return to Columbus for the state finals this season.

But if the team developes, as Coach Russ Murphy hopes, Mansfield will have something to say about which team gains the state title.

Loses Two Men.

Mansfield lost two dependable men in John Hallabrin and Elmer Dials, but eight lettermen return, and Murphy figures the Tygers should give a good account of themselves, despite the fact that they face the toughest schedule ever encountered by a home town team.

The Tygers open their season on the road Friday night at Shelby. They do not play at home until Dec. 16 when Hamilton comes here. The second game is at Cleveland West.

Virtually all of the Richland county league and N. C. O. conference teams go into action this week. The only exceptions are Galion, Ashland and Bellville, which defeated Fredericktown in its opener last week.

This week's schedule opens Tuesday when Butler is host to Perrysville. North Fairfield performs at Plymouth Thursday. In addition to the Shelby-Mansfield-Shelby tussle, the Friday games find Tiffin Business University at Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky at Marion, Mt. Gilead at Mt. Vernon, Madison at Union, Lucas at Ontario, Adario at Shiloh and Lexington at Butler.

Marion plays at Delaware Saturday night. This is the only Saturday game on schedule this week, according to the schedules.

Tight championship battles loom in all of the leagues in which teams in this vicinity are involved. Take the county league, for instance. A wide open race is expected to develop.

One of the teams which stacks up a serious contender is Butler. Butler lost heavily through June graduation, but has a number of fine performers returning.

Veterans returning are Bob Boals, Kenny Miller and Wendall Hall. Harold Hall, Bob Arnold, David Grubb, Jack Wilson, Don Boals and Dick Bauman are being groomed for varsity service in addition to Ray Thrush, late of Polk.

One of Coach Bob Burgett's biggest jobs will be to fill the post held by Dick King at center. Grubb is the leading contender for the pivot post. He scales three and a half inches above six feet.

Madison stacks up as a serious contender. Lettermen are Bill and Bob Wilkins, Joe Miller, Gene Harmon, Doug De Nero, Bob Matthes, Mel Harner and Walter Kopcial. Promising candidates on Coach Al Fendrick's team are Bill Heichel, Walter Weimer, Dave Weimer and Bud Barber.

Has New Coach.

Lucas has a new coach in Alfred Axe, and should rate with the stronger teams. Only one man was lost by graduation. There is a possibility that Lucas, heretofore without a home floor, will be able to open its own court along about Jan. 20.

Coach Orville Kibler's Ontario quintet will suffer from graduation, but a number of promising cagemen have been discovered in the under-classmen group. However, it is doubtful whether they will be developed sufficiently this season to be contenders.

Kibler lost Casad, Miller, Prior, Bookwalter, Fink and Laubscher. The lettermen are Mat Hager, T. D. Hudson and Henry Hager. Outstanding prospects are Jack Hannan, Al Sauer, Dick Cassel, Rich Bemiller, Robert Wagenhals, Charles Schafer, Jack Hager, Russell Devore, Eugene Sowers, William Gage, Spencer Gage, Tom Fink and Bill Gaverick.

Bellville, coached by Royd Hodge, has five lettermen in Russ Sheriff, Howard Hamilton, Bill Martin, Clinton Bill and Eugene Yarger. Prospects include John Wade, Fred Leedy, Don Palm, Robert Mabee, Robert Edgerly, Pete Pearl and Rich Wade. Coach John Reese has three lettermen at Lexington, and the Minutemen should figure in the race.

The strength of the county representatives in the league involving Plymouth, Shiloh and Adario is problematical. Coach Donald Dunham of Plymouth is assembling a promising squad. Coach R. M. Richards of Shiloh is troubled with injuries and the lack of a home floor is again a handicap at Adario.

Shiloh is being handicapped by the loss of Bob Moier, who was one of the leading scorers in the county last season. Mosier suffered two broken bones in his wrist recently. Center Dean Dawson added to Richards' worries when he broke a thumb.

The N. C. O. conference teams should develop into another interesting race. Shelby comes up with five lettermen in Bob Stevens, Frank Benham, Bob Fireoved, Joe Miller and Harold Bliss. Bob Lehman, another letterman, has been ill, and it is doubtful whether he will be able to play this year. The team will lack height.

Ashland, which won only four out of 14 games last season, has lost Ed Snook, Dick Witt and Dick Dever by graduation, but has good material coming up. Veterans returning are Gene Burns, Bob Glasener, Darrell Ritter, Dutch Shull and Phil Smith, seniors; Vince Barr, junior, and Tom Bear, Bob Howell and Jim Puglisi, sophomores.

One Regular Returns.

Kay Thompson is the only regular of last year's great Mt. Vernon team returning, but it has a group of fine prospects. Marion has lost its entire team and Bucyrus has lost all but Bill Seits and Ken Fegley.

Galion has four lettermen in Bryan Beck, George Corrado, Bill Grubaugh and Lawrence Maidens.

Baugh's Flips Beat Pirates

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Sammy Baugh is still pitching touchdown passes—so well, in fact, that his Washington Redskins, 1937 professional champions, were still in the running for the 1938 title today.

Baugh, underweight and hampered throughout the season by a shoulder separation, tossed two touchdown passes Sunday as Washington trimmed Pittsburgh, 15-0, before 25,000 Capital City fans.

The Chicago Cardinals won their second victory over the Cleveland Rams, 31-17. Gaynell Tinsley, former L. S U. end, caught a pass from Doug Russell for a 98-yard gain to beat his former record, a 97-yard gain on a pass made last year.

Inmates Lose Opening Game

Akron Church Gains Lead in Third Period.

The inmates of the reformatory opened their 1938-39 basketball season by bowing to the Arlington United Brethren church quintet of Akron, 37 to 35, in a heated game at the institution Saturday.

The first half ended in a 21-all tie, but the visitors took a four-point lead in the third period, which the inmates were unable to overcome.

Calhoun scored 12 points to lead the inmates, but the scoring honors went to Slaninka of Akron, who tallied 22 points.

Monty Stratton Cut Down By Hunting Accident; 'Pretty Certain' to Lose Leg, Physician Says

DALLAS —(AP)— Chance, which zoomed Monty Stratton from semi-pro baseball to magor league stardom in four years, today apparently doomed him to the sidelines with the accidental discharge of his pistol.

Stratton, the Chicago White Sox' ace pitcher, is "pretty certain" to lose his right leg, Dr. A. R. Thomasson said.

The leg was shattered yesterday when a pistol accidentally discharged in a holster at the right-hander's side while he was hunting rabbits on his mother's farm near Greenville. The bullet cut into his leg, severing a large blood vessel behind his knee.

Monty, only 25, crawled almost to the farmhouse before one of his brothers found him.

Dr. Thomasson gave Stratton a blood transfusion to "build him up somewhat" and said he would decide within 36 hours whether amputation would be necessary. The hurler was reported "resting fairly well."

Although in professional baseball only four years, Stratton had been the mainstay of the White Sox pitching staff two seasons. He won 15 games last year despite a month's absence with an arm injury.

MONTY STRATTON

The accident was a shock to White Sox officials who had counted on Stratton for the 1939 American league race.

Harry Grabiner, secretary, said in Chicago:

"It was most unfortunate, for Monty was one of the best pitchers in the American league. But baseball is secondary now. Our concern is about his health. We are all hoping nothing more serious develops."

Four years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Largent, who scout for the Chisox, heard a promising player was buried in the mediocrity of Texas' Red River valley league.

They looked—and started to leave. Then Largent glanced at the bullpen. "Look," he exclaimed.

A stringbean pitcher, 6 feet, 5 inches tall, was warming up. He had a smooth, distinctive delivery.

Without even seeing the youth pitch, Largent signed him. The pitcher was Stratton.

PAM— Strange Coincidence!

By A. W. Brewerton

THEY HAD BEEN TO DINNER AND, AS THEY WERE LEAVING THEIR DINING PLACE, PAM EXCLAIMED:—
PAUL! SEE THAT MAN — THERE BY THE DOOR?
YES — THE ONE WITH THE BLUE SUIT?
4-28
-- THAT'S THE ONE! DO YOU KNOW, I'M ALMOST SURE HE WAS FOLLOWING ME AFTER I LEFT THE OFFICE TONIGHT — I SAW HIM IN THE LOBBY — AND THEN LATER — NEAR HOME!
REALLY?! I'LL GET A GOOD LOOK AT HIM!
NO, HE DIDN'T TRY TO SPEAK TO ME! - DO YOU SUPPOSE HE'S REALLY FOLLOWING ME? - FUNNY I'D SEE HIM HERE AGAIN, ISN'T IT?
DOES SEEM ODD - STILL - IT COULD BE JUST A COINCIDENCE - HE DOESN'T APPEAR TO BE PAYING ANY ATTENTION TO US!
THEY WENT TO A MOVIE, AND LATER, BOUND FOR PAM'S APARTMENT IN A TAXI, NEITHER NOTICED ANOTHER CAR TRAILING THEIRS!
IT'S BEEN GRAND BEING WITH YOU AGAIN, PAM! I HATE TO THINK OF HAVING TO RETURN TO MY OUT-OF-TOWN WORK IN A DAY OR SO!

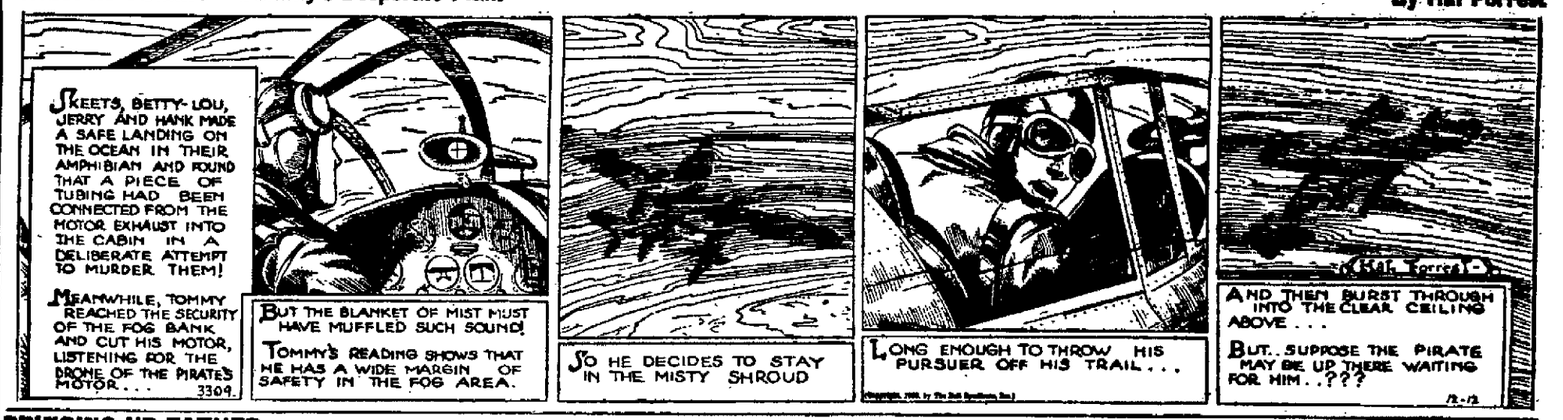
TAILSPIN TOMMY— Tommy's Desperate Plan.

By Hal Forrest



SKEETS, BETTY-LOU, JERRY AND HANK MADE A SAFE LANDING ON THE OCEAN IN THEIR AMPHIBIAN AND FOUND THAT A PIECE OF TUBING HAD BEEN CONNECTED FROM THE MOTOR EXHAUST INTO THE CABIN IN A DELIBERATE ATTEMPT TO MURDER THEM!
MEANWHILE, TOMMY REACHED THE SECURITY OF THE FOG BANK AND CUT HIS MOTOR, LISTENING FOR THE DRONE OF THE PIRATE'S MOTOR... 3304
BUT THE BLANKET OF MIST MUST HAVE MUFFLED SUCH SOUND!
TOMMY'S READING SHOWS THAT HE HAS A WIDE MARGIN OF SAFETY IN THE FOG AREA.
SO HE DECIDES TO STAY IN THE MISTY SHROUD
LONG ENOUGH TO THROW HIS PURSUER OFF HIS TRAIL...
AND THEN BURST THROUGH INTO THE CLEAR CEILING ABOVE...
BUT.. SUPPOSE THE PIRATE MAY BE UP THERE WAITING FOR HIM..???

MAJOR STOCKS LOSE GROUND IN SLOW MARKET

Early Efforts at Recovery Meets With Scant Response in Today's Mart.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Early efforts at recovery met with scant response in today's stock market and leading issues yielded fractions to a point or more.

Principal losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Kennecott, American Smelting, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Westinghouse, American Can and N. Y. Central.

American Telephone and Dunhill were exceptions, each moving up about a point.

Business news was still moderately encouraging and there apparently was a little less tension over foreign affairs. Selling for income tax purposes, brokers said, continued as a retarding influence. Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Holders of steel shares noted the review of the magazine "Steel" which said that signs of the anticipated leveling off of demand and production in this field were becoming more pronounced.

It was added, though, that, while seasonal influences are retarding business in some products, the outlook for relatively steady output during the remainder of the current quarter was bright.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO — (AP) — Trading in live stock remained at a standstill over the week-end at the Chicago stockyards because of the strike of C. I. O. union yard workers. No quotations were available. As a consequence of the strike, which was called last Monday, there has been no actual market here except on Tuesday, when commission men, by agreement with the union, were allowed to clean up two days' accumulation of 60,000 animals. The first formal attempt to settle the strike between the union and the Union Stockyards & Transit Co. by intervention of federal and state conciliators failed.

Receipts were nearly all consigned direct to packers or were intended for the International Live Stock Exposition Saturday's live stock market was nominal.

Estimated receipts of 9,000 hogs were all direct. Cattle were estimated at 1,000 and sheep at 1 000

FRAMEWORK OF SCHOOL'S SHOP ADDITION RISES

Laying of Brick Walls of New Senior High Building to Start This Week.

With the steel framework completed for the $25,000 shop addition at Mansfield Senior high school, workmen were ready today to start laying brick for the walls of the building.

If the weather is favorable the one-story structure, which will house the automotive and manual arts departments at the high school, will be completed by late December, Charles W. Conklin, architect for the building, asserted.

Soon after completion of the shop addition, the second unit of the $1,000,000 school building program, the John Simpson junior high building will be razed to make way for a new $450,000 building on the same location.

Recommends Salvaging.

J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, today had recommended to the board of education that equipment amounting to several thousand dollars be salvaged from the old John Simpson building for use in making replacements in other buildings and in construction of the new John Simpson building.

Included in the equipment Moke urged the board to keep are electric transformers and fixtures, office furniture, about half of the desks, steel lockers, radiators, thermostats, water heaters, blackboards, window glass and window shades.

A quantity of the brick and other building materials in the old structure will be used in the construction of the new school, Moke said.

Although razing of the building is not due to begin until after the first of the year, Moke said he had closed off the third floor of the school, which was condemned several weeks ago, and removed electric fixtures and blackboards from the rooms.

Seven 'Murders' Confessed Weekly In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)— Every day of every week someone walks into Detective Headquarters in Philadelphia and confesses a murder, according to Captain James Ryan.

"Several people come in here every day of the week confessing murders," Ryan said. "But when you get down to proving the murder, they don't know anything about it.

"Sometimes people come in to confess the murder of persons down in Alabama or some distant place, for the purpose of getting back home. When they get back there you call up and find there was no such person murdered.

"We have all sorts of nuts coming in. We have at least 100 fantastic stories a year."

CHAPTER 8.

On the afternoon after Dr. Holgate had called on Sara Sue, confessing to her his love for Peaches Pomeroy, Robert Towne, Rice senior, stuck his head out of his dormitory window and issued a command:

"Slime Gurley, get your contemptible hide up here!"

Gurley was not insulted, since all freshmen are called "slimes." He had been at Rice for a week, which is long enough to begin learning things. He hastened upstairs.

"Yes, sir," he reported to Bob, giving the salute. The slime salute consists of touching the button of a ridiculous green skull cap and wagging one's fingers. The cap, like the salute, is mandatory at Rice.

Bob engaged in some intense berating of the slime until such time as his rich vocabulary ran out. Then the freshman was made to shine two pairs of senior shoes, sweep the senior's room, dust all his furniture, and bring him a glass of ice water from the hall fountain. Twice during the hour's process, Bob whipped the lad with a leather belt—not too hard—just for added pleasure.

Some of Bob's friends came in, and they also insulted the freshman variously. One of them painted a mustache on the young lad with iodine. Another made him sing words on a cigaret pack, to the tune of "Home On the Range." Another commanded the boy to do an imitation of Mae West.

* * *

When these scholastic pursuits were over, Bob ordered Slime Gurley to go to the dormitory entrance gates about 200 yards away, climb one high brick post and stand motionless on top of it in the pose of Napoleon.

"How long shall I stay?" Worthington asked.

"Until I tell you to come down, you slime! Get going!"

He got going. Moreover, he got going in good spirits. Nobody was peeved at anybody else. This was all routine. He struck his pose on the gatetop, while a lot of passers-by grinned appreciatively. And he was promptly forgotten by the seniors.

Really young freshmen—i. e., slimy slimes—have been known to stand on that post all night, so great was their awe of upperclassmen, and their general lack of acumen.

But Slime Worthington Gurley came to himself after an hour or two. Hunger contributed a great deal. When the dinner signal sounded and students began running like stampeded cattle for the mess hall entrance, "Napoleon" began to worry. Finally he decided to risk the upperclass wrath. He climbed down and hastened to his own meal.

"Slime, if you had stood up there another half hour," Bob Towne greeted him, "I would have smacked you for it. I ought to anyhow."

"But you told—" the lad caught himself.

A chorus of guffaws and hooting answered. Even his own fellow freshmen grinned. After all, the game is to appear obedient to the upperclassmen and yet disobey them in every way possible. Sometimes, though, it isn't possible, when they hover near with paddles, straps and belts. Bob Towne was an exceptionally muscular football man.

* * *

After dinner Bob took the freshman to his room again, and locked the door behind them this time. Worthington sighed.

"What are you going to do to me now?" he asked.

The older student smiled, and unexpectedly stuck out his hand.

"Shake, slime," he commanded. "I was just giving you the works. "You're all right."

"Hunh?" He automatically shook hands with Bob.

"You're O. K. If you had whimpered, or gotten mad, or sat back on false pride, it would be a different story. I wouldn't have Sara Sue Davis annoyed by a heel. I had—I had sort of hoped you'd turn out to be a heel, Gurley. But, damn it, you didn't!"

Slime Gurley was still young. Young enough not to follow Bob's conversation. He stared a little vacantly.

"You mean—?"

"I mean you must have something, even if you are a slime, see? Sara Sue told me you are going to take her to the freshman ball. I wondered—that is—well, Gurley, you see—" Bob Towne rarely ever was at a loss for words. But then he rarely ever faced a situation such as this. "—the fact is, Gurley, I was trying to get a line on you. Sara Sue's tops. If you had not been the right sort, I wouldn't have stood for it. Of course, it's her privilege to select her own escorts. I'm nuts about her myself, though; and if any mug who isn't worthy hangs around her, he'll answer to me!"

"Gos-sh, Bob!"

"I mean it, Gurley. If you—if she wants—well, the fact is I guess we're rivals. You know what I mean. If she likes you, and you're all right, then my hands are tied. I just wanted you to understand."

"Gosh, Bob!" the younger lad repeated it. "I—I—you mean you aren't going to try to keep me away from her? Me, a slime?"

"That's what I mean. If I did that, then I'd be a heel, Gurley. I may haze you, for fun, along with the other freshmen. But this, this other business, is confidential, you see? It's—man to man!"

The freshman swallowed.

"You're younger than she, Gurley. By five years. But that still doesn't matter. It's a free country. You can set up to her all you like, if she permits it. She has the privilege of choosing between us, or a dozen of us for that matter. But I'll break anybody's neck that's not honest with her!"

"Say—me, too, Bob! Say, that's—" the younger man was deeply impressed. His face shone like the kid he was, but he felt he was in adult business now. He swallowed again.

"I'll do everything in my power to beat your time, Gurley. But it's no hazing business, no senior-freshman fight. It's me versus you, with a girl for judge. Man to man." The senior, intensely serious, again held out his hand.

"T-thanks, Bob! Gee, you're swell!" Young Gurley looked up at him. "Say, would you—would you like some dances? I mean it. I can be as fair as you can, Bob. My ball program isn't filled yet. I can let you have some dances with her."

The two men stared momentarily at each other. Bob felt distinctly ill at ease, a sensation almost unknown to him. Something had happened to him of late; something had disturbed his ego. A freshman had beaten him to the dance date. A freshman! He, Bob Towne, the go-getter, was playing second fiddle. He didn't like it.

"No, thanks," said Bob, not very graciously.

RABBIT SERUM TO BE USED IN INDIANA TO FIGHT PNEUMONIA

(By International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Serum obtained from rabbits soon will be used to treat pneumonia in Indiana hospitals.

The new serum, said to be more effective than that taken from horses, will be used in a state-wide fight against the respiratory disease, according to Dr. Verne K. Harvey, state health board secretary.

Every hospital will be inspected to determine if it has the apparatus necessary for typing pneumonia, a process required in the administering of the serum.

The rabbit serum was tested last year at the hospital of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York and in seven other eastern hospitals.

Advantages Listed.

Dr. Herman G. Morgan, secretary of the Indianapolis city health board, listed the following advantages of rabbit over horse serum:

1. Less harmful reactions in the patient.

2. Quicker action, because its "anti-bodies," or disease-killing particles, are one-fourth to one-third the size of the horse serum anti-bodies, and therefore are passed into the tissues of the body more rapidly.

3. Less expensive and greater speed in obtaining the serum, since it can be developed faster in rabbits than in horses.

The rabbit serum had the effect of completely sterilizing the bloodstream in practically all cases tested, and no severe unfavorable reactions were observed incident to the injections, Dr. Morgan declared.

The serum is obtained by injecting pneumonia germs into rabbits in small quantities. The rabbits contract the disease and build up resistance to it, but do not die.

The serum which they produce as a result is a blood constituent in which antibodies have been manufactured. Injected into human being, the serum kills pneumonia germs.

All colds, however slight, are potential forerunners of pneumonia, Dr. Morgan warned.

While there are 32 different types of pneumonia organisms which may cause the disease, the majority of cases come from a few types. Forty percent of pneumonia deaths are caused from types one and two, for example.

ITALY PRESSED TO HALT WAVE OF SMUGGLING

Schemes to Get Valuables, Money Out of Country Cause Authorities Trouble.

(By United Press)

ROME—Anti-semitism and strict currency regulations have given frontier smuggling of contraband in Italy its greatest impetus.

Smuggling has always existed in Italy. Today, however, the intensity, direction and nature of the contraband has changed. Most of the frontier trafficking now consists of currency, jewels and valuable metals from Italy to France and Switzerland.

The causes given are two: strict currency regulations which forbid taking money abroad and the desire of non-Aryans to leave the country with as much of their fortune and valuable belongings as possible.

Smuggling received its greatest fanfare about a month ago when the entire Italian press came out with an organized and well-directed expose of its existence. The arrest of several prominent Italians, to whom Jews were distantly connected, for smuggling currency into France produced the greatly desired scapegoats.

Many Schemes Ingenious.

At the same time the papers detailedly explained the different methods which professionals and amateurs employed in smuggling money and precious stones and metals across the frontier. To say the least, the majority of them were exceedingly ingenious.

The most recent and original case was reported only a few days ago in a Milanese paper. The imaginative smugglers unscrewed the metal hat pegs in a first-class compartment of the Paris-Rome express and substituted others, carefully prepared in advance, made of gold and platinum and nickeled coated. Once the frontier was passed these were removed and the original ones replaced.

A few days previously an Italian on the Rome-Amsterdam express carefully wrapped 120 one-thousand lire bills in several towels and placed them back into the towel cabinet in the train compartment's wash room. Another passenger gave away his compatriot shortly afterward when he notified the ticket collector of the hidden money.

Glass Eye Trick Exposed.

Another case aroused the suspicion of the customs agents because of the frequency with which a monocled individual crossed the frontier. He was questioned during one trip and after a careful examination was found to have a hollow glass eye in which he hid precious stones and folded banknotes of high denominations.

One smuggler succeeded in getting currency across the frontier several times by hiding banknotes in a rubber tube which carries steam from one train compartment to another.

Then there are many tricks which are "old stuff" to the sharp-eyed, experienced customs officials. Among these are concealing banknotes inside of book bindings, tie linings and inside cushions, mattresses and inside of false bottoms in valises and trunks. Jewels are often hidden in chocolates, sandwiches and fruit.

Many smuggling attempts are made by motor car. The cleverest recently made were two cases in which the license plate and mudguards were of solid gold. Another smuggler was caught because he exaggerated. He had a hammerhead made of solid platinum but as it was overlarge—weighing five pounds—it aroused the curiosity of the guard.

Dogs are used by professionals. Currency and precious stones are strapped on them. Then they are picked up on the other side by confederates.

Cycling Rotarian Keeps Attendance Close to Perfect

XENIA—(AP)—The "cycling rotarian" of Xenia pedals weekly to neighboring towns and as a result attendance at the local club is perfect.

The cyclist is the Rev. C. C. Hankins, chaplain of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans home here, and secretary and song leader of the Xenia Rotary club.

His jaunts came about when members here accepted his offer to pedal to luncheons of neighboring clubs whenever 100 per cent attendance of the home club was recorded this month.

So far the "pedaling parson" has pumped his way o'er hill and dale to the Osborn-Fairfield club session and another at Wilmington, 18 miles distant. Springfield is the next scheduled jaunt.

The Wilmington junket took one hour and 40 minutes on the outward trip but an adverse wind cut time on the return trek to two hours and 20 minutes, the chaplain said.

In the event the Xenia club realizes its ambition to win a place among the 10 highest clubs in attendance for November, Mr. Hankins and P. W. Cox, Xenia club president, have promised to make a tandem "bike" journey to a destination as yet unselected.

FRENCH BUSES, SUBWAYS TO BE RUN BY ARMY

Government Takes Drastic Steps to Combat General Strike Wednesday.

(By International News Service)

PARIS—Buses and subways of Paris, as well as France's 30,000 miles of railways, will be ordered requisitioned under military rule as a measure to combat the strike of 5,000,000 General Confederation of Labor members Wednesday, the government of Premier Edouard Daladier decided today.

The focal center of the rapidly-approaching crisis will be the railroads, ordered requisitioned yesterday, for it is evident that leaders of the rail workers' are determined to resist Daladier's action.

Strikers Map Action.

Indications are that a policy of passive resistance will be adopted. In order to avoid punishment under military regulations for striking, the railwaymen may try to thwart Daladier's purposes by going to their posts, then act as though they were deaf and dumb.

Daladier, hurling charges of "political blackmail" against his Leftist opponents, today conferred with Gen. Victor Eourret, commander of the Paris military region, and other police and government heads, planning the strongest measures for protection of the populace during Wednesday's general strike.

Daladier and his counsellors, it was understood, weighed the possibility of declaring a "state of siege" to smash in advance the strike.

Independent strikes, which have been going on in factories and mines, especially in the northern industrial sector, for more than a week, were gradually being broken up.

More than 30,000 workers, it was estimated, have returned to work in the northern industrial areas. Many returned voluntarily, others were forcibly evacuated from factories and mines which they occupied.

SEEK WAGE INCREASE

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Thomas Joyce, business agent for the A. F. of L. affiliated laborers' union said today demands for an increase from 87½ cents to $1 in the hourly wage rate for 2,000 sewer diggers on Cuyahoga county WPA projects have been made to the regional WPA offices at Chicago.

HELD IN JAIL

Man, 32, Accused of Delinquency Charge by Kin of Girl, 16.

Arrested at his home Sunday afternoon by deputy sheriffs, Tom Murphy, 32, of 337 Springmill street, was held in the county jail today on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old girl.

Murphy, who will be taken before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court, was cited on a warrant signed by the girl's mother.

SEEKS RELEASE OF LIFE TERMER

Petition Asks Clemency for Charles Wilson, Convicted in Mansfield Murder.

watched that case two years ago and if Wilson were to be released now it would only serve as a notice to those same young people that a similar crime would involve a comparatively minor penalty," the prosecutor said.

Marriott also said that one of the members of the Wilson case jury had come to him several weeks ago and told him he had been approached by a person whose name Marriott declined to divulge, and had shown some letters written by other members of the jury, seeking clemency for Wilson, and asking him to write a similar letter. Marriott said he preferred not to divulge the person to whom the letters were addressed.

The prosecutor said he understood that some of the jurorrs who had taken a stand against the mercy recommendation during the panel's deliberations had done "an about face" on the case.

Ralph Moorhead, automobile dealer and father of the slain girl, said he had talked with Howard Wilson, uncle of the convicted youth here recently and that Wilson had asked him if he would oppose a move to win clemency for his nephew.

"I told him only that I expected that the terms of the statutes setting up the penalty for such an act to be upheld," Moorhead said.

Reached by telephone at Columbus today, H. W. Jewell, chairman of the state parole board, said no application for a parole for Wilson had been received by the board and that he hadn't heard anything about such a movement.

Miss Bair expressed wonder that newsmen had heard of the petitions.

"How did you trace me over here?" she asked.

She referred all questions concerning the petition to her brother, Robert G. Bair, who disclaimed any knowledge of such petitions.

City officials who were asked to sign petitions said they had not read them closely, but thought they were addressed to the governor, asking for consideration for a parole for Wilson.

Miss Bair is listed in the latest city directory as employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. An earlier city directory showed she was once employed by the National Biscuit company, where Wilson's uncle was employed.

Killed Girl In April, 1936.

Wilson shot and killed Jean Moorhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moorhead, in front of her home, 23 Western avenue, on the night of April 4, 1936.

Jean had returned home from a picture show with Haskell Smith, 110 Western avenue, about 11:30 p. m. Wilson, with whom she had been friendly, drove up while Smith and Miss Moorhead were sitting in the former's car.

Wilson sought to pull the girl from the car and suddenly shot her. She died a few moments later.

Wilson fled westward, but was caught in Crestline without putting up a struggle and was returned here.

Indicted and brought to trial on May 4, he was convicted on May 8 by a jury of 11 men and one woman on a charge of first degree murder, with a recommendation of mercy, making a life sentence mandatory.

He was sentenced by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, and entered Ohio penitentiary May 15, 1936. Later he was transferred to London prison farm.

HUNT ARSONIST

Cleveland Firemen Checking $250,000 Building Blaze.

CLEVELAND—(UP)—The arson squad today investigated one of the worst fires in recent years here—destruction of the five-story brick warehouse of the Kane Furniture company, with damage estimates running from $150,000 to $250,000.

Seven fire companies still were playing water upon the smouldering remains today. The alarm was turned in late Sunday. During most of the night 14 fire companies battled the flames while thousands of persons, drawn by a radio broadcast from the scene, looked on.

Only the walls remained. One of the points which drew the arson squad's interest was the fire's rapid spread. Second Assistant Chief Joseph Sweeny pointed out all five floors were ablaze when the first fire equipment reached the scene, four minutes after the alarm.

of the highway. Declaring that the accident was unavoidable, Evans said the next car that struck the icy stretch of paving crashed into his car.

At least five other persons died in the state over the week-end, either in traffic mishaps attributed to the slippery highways, from drowning or from the cold. More than 100 persons have died in the nation as a result of the frigid wave.

The eastern states dug out of snow from 10 to 20 inches deep, and in Maine rescuers fought huge drifts to take food to 100 hunters and CCC youths reported isolated in the northern wilderness by two successive blizzards.

Help Near.

Early today state police reported one unit of the rescue parties had broken trail to Mopang lake, five miles east of Beddington, while a second detail approached Eagle lake, several miles to the north. Police did not learn how many hunters were found at Mopang. It was said several women were among the group at Eagle lake.

While tractors and huge trucks, manned by state police, national guards and game wardens pushed through drifts they reported eight and ten feet high in places, airplanes were made ready at Bangor and Augusta to fly over the isolated hunting camps and lodges with food supplies.

The widespread rescue operations began last night at the direction of Gov. Lewis O. Barrows, after he was informed a number of hunters who had entered the woods for the Thanksgiving holiday and week-end had failed to come out.

Most of the hunters were believed to have only enough food supplies to last until Saturday or Sunday. Officials said however, some of the hunters would eke out their meagre supplies with game they may have brought down Thursday before the first storm struck.

Moderating only three degrees from Sunday's reading of 12 degrees, lowest of the season, the temperature in Mansfield was 15 above this morning and had climbed only to 25 above at noon today. The highest yesterday was 22 degrees.

6 Above in Springfield.

The coldest spot in Ohio was at Springfield where the mercury tumbled to six above. It was 12 at Columbus, 13 at Cincinnati and 19 at Cleveland.

Sub-freezing temperatures were general as far south as Georgia and as far west as Kansas City, and the northeastern states braced themselves for another storm that was swirling up from the central Atlantic region.

On top of the hard crust of ice and snow from the Thanksgiving blizzard lay anywhere from one to five inches of fresh week-end snow. In Virginia, where the total snowfall last year was only 1.7 inches, 7½ inches of snow was on the ground.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1938.

Hard to realize that there are only 23 shopping days from now until Christmas.

Transportation again leads recovery, because Americans, wherever they are, want to go somewhere else.

"Every nation losing a war," says an exiled German statesman, "looks for those who are guilty of losing it. The majority is never guilty."

Problem of School Finances.

DECISION to relieve an acute situation in public school finances by additional borrowing, as authorized by the state director of school finances, may be the best thing to do in an emergency but seems to fall far short of real solution of the problem.

With an increasing deficit in the state school foundation fund and sales tax collections falling short of requirements, there is need for a more dependable tax income for school purposes if the present program of state aid is to be maintained.

While a suggestion offered by State Treasurer Knisley might not be found practicable, it at least presents several interesting points for consideration.

Mr. Knisley calls attention to the fact that, over a period of several years, the state has been carrying balances in all funds of approximately $45,000,000, which is drawing very little interest.

His suggestion is that the legislature pass a bill borrowing $15,000,000 from the state treasury balance and pay all school indebtedness. He proposes that no interest be paid on this loan.

"This would not affect the banks to any extent," Mr. Knisley says, "since practically all of the $15,000,000 would be used to take up notes now held by various banks.

His idea is that repayment to the state treasury could be completed in five years, three million being repaid each year by taking one million dollars each from the general revenue, the auto registration and the gasoline tax funds.

Principal objection, he foresees, would come from diverting auto registration and gasoline tax funds from the highway department.

In any event, this is one of the serious matters of business that will come before the new legislature when it gets into action in January, and one that will demand earnest attention and sound judgment in getting school finances out of the present muddle.

Ideas About New-World Cities.

THE Pan-American Congress of Municipalities, recently in session at Havana, recommended several matters for the attention of the coming Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru.

First, it suggested either outright municipal ownership of public utilities, or private ownership by companies organized under the laws of the country they are in, and subject to technical, economic and financial inspection in order to fix rates, curb profits and limit concessions.

It recommended also publication of an international municipal bulletin for distribution to cities of the Americas of more than 50,000 population. Improvement of labor conditions, recognition of unions, maximum hours, minimum wages, vacations for workers and public support of the families of striking workers were other matters considered and supported. The group also urged complete independence for Puerto Rico and liberation of political prisoners.

It is a large program, perhaps not to be carried out in full for some time, if ever. Yet it is interesting and worth while to have representatives of cities of the whole western hemisphere getting together in this way to discuss mutual problems.

Trucks Show Modern Trend.

THE national motor truck show in New York held its own very well in competition with the passenger car shows. It was the largest show of commercial vehicles ever assembled. In fact, the general manager had to make his rounds among the extensive exhibits on a bicycle. Messenger girls used roller skates

The show had more than bigness. It offered much that is new in this field, in metals, body designs, engines and all the rest.

There was a lot of fascinating new equipment in the show, such as unloading slings on a beer truck and a streamlined wrecker with a great variety of special devices for emergency jobs. Buses have more shoulder and knee room for passengers and more shatter-proof glass. There are Diesel engines of various types and other motor innovations. And almost all the trucks and buses are better looking, keeping up nicely with the passenger car in this respect.

The Best Is Popular, Too.

LITTLE need to worry about the effect of jazz and swing on young people's musical taste. Many in the younger generation are as sound in their taste as their elders and have had much better training in musical appreciation. A newspaper columnist, who refuses to get excited over the supposed bad influence of swing, presents evidence on the other side.

A pianist of her acquaintance reports that the maid of the household, a girl who might be expected to be a swing enthusiast, said to her the other day: "There's one thing you play that I'm just crazy about. It's the prettiest piece I ever heard, and always makes me feel like dancing." The piece in question turned out to be the rondeau from a Beethoven sonata.

Recently, too, the columnist saw and heard a young man walking along the street and whistling cheerfully "Tales From the Vienna Woods."

Perhaps the jitterbugs make the most noise, but they are far from being the whole musical public or even a majority of the music-loving boys and girls in high school and college.

There is talk of charging admission to some of the more popular radio broadcasts—which should eliminate the courtesy applause and laughter periods.

Yes, we have some gangsters in this country. But they're in private life.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — By taking a nose dive into British economic and trade publications you get more of an idea why England was glad to take any step, such as the trade pact with the U. S., offering some offset against further German trade aggressions.

By a system of trade inventions that amaze the English, Germany is able to buy and buy and buy food, cotton and other raw materials, and sell her own manufactured articles to countries which England once considered her own customers.

An article in the London Economist points out some of the mechanisms by which Germany sews up trade. Suppose tobacco, oil and wheat are needed. All these are available in the Balkan countries. Germany offers to buy large supplies of these goods. She will pay aski marks, which are good only for purchase of German goods in return.

Maybe the Balkan countries don't like to be tied up to buying only German goods, so they object to the deal. Germany promptly offers to pay higher than the world market price. Farmers, eager for an opportunity to sell at a high price, insist that the deal go through. And since peasants in the Balkans outnumber everybody else, they have to be satisfied.

* * *

Powerful Persuaders.

THAT leaves the Balkan banks loaded with aski marks with which they can buy only German goods. Now if a Balkan importer has been used to buying British shoes or fabrics or steel, he will be persuaded instead to buy in Germany because the banks have to use up this German exchange. Thus Britain loses a customer.

There has been so much of this that the Balkans are loaded with aski marks They can't spend them for anything except German goods. And Germany isn't always willing to sell them what they want. The Balkans may want steel building materials but Germany instead wants to sell toys and glasware. Yugoslavia was compelled to buy huge quantities of aspirin. Rumania bought thousands of typewriters, and Greece bought mouth organs by the hundred thousand.

* * *

Big Munitions Market.

IN AN effort to use up more of the growing supply of aski marks, many Balkan countries agreed to buy German munitions. Now why should Germany, engaged in an armament race, sell munitions? Simple, says the London Economist, Germany sells munitions which are growing obsolete for a first class power. They still are satisfactory for smaller countries.

Much of this same type of trade goes on with South America. Selling armaments to these countries is an especially good deal for Germany. It means that the countries which buy armaments from Germany must continue trading with her, because only Germany can supply spare parts and ammunition for the military equipment.

The London Economist is fearful that a tremendous source of minerals not yet developed in the Balkan countries will be opened up by German money and thus create for Germany a huge military asset which could not be cut off.

Some authorities in the commerce department here, however, suspect the estimate of these sources is excessive. But whatever develops, the Balkans at present are capable of supplying 20 per cent of Germany's raw material needs and there is little doubt that their ability will be swelled rapidly under German guidance, and trade pressure.

Nazis Extreme In Nationalism

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, German ambassador in Washington, who, as a sequel to the return of our own Berlin ambassador, has been called to Europe to enlighten Herr Hitler as to America's "strange attitude" toward Nazi-ism —well, Ambassador Dieckhoff formerly was an enthusiastic plugger for the Esperanto cult, the folk who boost for the development of an international language. Their theory is that such a language not only will be a convenience but also that it will make for an all-around understanding among peoples, meaning harmony. That the scheme is a practicability may be doubtful but that's immaterial.

Dieckhoff

The point is that, not long ago, the ambassador looked in at a Washington gathering of Esperantists. He didn't see anyone he knew (not at first), for it had been several years since he had attended an Esperantists' meeting.

But presently he was spotted by a veteran of the cult, Edwin Reed, a Washington lawyer, who had been well acquainted with him aforetime, in the days when Herr Dieckhoff himself was prominent in Esperantist circles. Reed immediately approached and greeted him.

His Name Was Smith!

"Hush," the ambassador whisperingly warned hastily, "my name's Smith for present purposes. I poked in here because of my heart interest in Esperanto and I wanted to listen. But it mustn't ever be advertised that I, Ambassador Dickhoff, attended an Esperanto get-together. Didn't you know that Esperanto is strictly banned in the Hitlerian Reich?"

Then the ambassador clarified, confidentially.

Nazi-ism is 100 per cent national—not so much as a fraction of 1 per cent international. Oh yes, it may concede that certain diplomatic business and commercial transactions may have to be conducted through interpreters—but an international language?—horrors!

Herr Hitler doesn't care if such negotiations ARE handled in the face of considerable linguistic difficulties; the notion is to make other peoples learn German.

I submit that this is a narrow view to take. Not that I hold any particular brief for Esperanto. Yet I do reason that it puts an almost cuckoo emphasis upon German. Ambassador Dieckhoff thought so too, of course, but he was afraid to say so.

The story was told to me by Esperantist Reed, and he didn't bind me to secrecy. If it ever gets to Germany, I presume it will make Ambassador Dickhoff trouble. I don't care for that, however. Let Dieckhoff, in Berlin, and Wilson, in Washington, fight it out between 'em.

But that doesn't settle the Esperantist controversy permanently. Other disputants will carry it on indefinitely.

I contend only that Germany's position, in what seems to me to be a question of small consequence, strikes me as being rather ridiculously trifling—in fact, bughouse.

Censorship Backwash.

It appears that, at the funeral of the German diplomatic clerk, killed by a young Jew in Paris, Herr Hitler intended to make a speech panning the democratic countries.

But he didn't and couldn't do it. If he had, he'd have had to tell why the democracies hate Nazi-ism. And he couldn't afford to tell If he'd done so he couldn't logically have censored his own speech. He bottled himself up automatically.

Health Advice

Functions of Adrenal Glands.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IF THE European dictators and democracies and soviet states could learn a lesson from the functions of the body, the world would be a very much more peaceful and happier place. Some of the organs, like the stomach, are democratic and some, like the heart respond to dictatorship. The heart works faithfully all the time and overtime and never stages a sit-down strike except once.

I suppose the brain is closest to the soviet state; it is always bawling the other organs out and getting mixed up in its own machinery, but somehow in most instances, muddling through.

The ductless glands are the dictators, some of them ruthless and some of them benevolent despots. In regulating the mechanisms of the body the pituitary which we have already studied is probably the most potent. But not far behind it are the adrenal glands two small pieces of tissue, one seated on the upper pole of each kidney.

Has Two Parts.

They consist of two parts. The central part is a different gland, entirely different in function and structure from the cortex or rind of tissue which surrounds it.

The central part consists of the cells which form adrenalin, a chemical hormone that does an active part in regulation. It works along with the pituitary secretion and they influence each other.

Here are some of its functions. If an extra amount of adrenalin is shot into the blood stream this releases the stored-up sugar in the liver and also stimulates the pancreas to form insulin with which the muscles can burn the sugar, thus creating energy. When you have a lot of work to do, a rigorous task, or when you want to be peppy, be sure your adrenalin secretion is working all right.

Adrenalin controls the amount of blood that is allowed to go to each part and it varies this with the changing needs.

Controls Blood Pressure.

It also exerts a regulatory control of the blood pressure. The administration of adrenalin raises blood pressure. Some surgeons believe that removal of the adrenal glands is the proper treatment for high blood pressure. It is true that in some cases tumors of the adrenal have been found in conjunction with high blood pressure.

The other part of the adrenal—the cortex—has functions connected in some way with the functions of reproduction. It influences the gonads, and masculinity and femininity in some way depend on its secretion. Bearded women usually have something the matter with their adrenal cortex. A woman may begin to grow hair on the face, assume a masculine walk and begin to speak in a deep voice. Examination shows she has a tumor of the adrenal. Removal of this results in a restoration to the feminine status.

Timely Editorial

Specific for the Very Young.

We are able to suggest a treatment for the high school youngsters down in Oklahoma City who are out to promote a "bloodless revolution" and to set up a new social and economic order after the general pattern of the Russian Soviet. These agitated young people should be taken home to their mothers, given warm milk and some soft bread and then sent to their beds for a night of sound sleep.

After that their school principals could give them a work-out on the track, then take them inside for a good rubbing down and a day's work at plying their books and meditating over the follies of misguided youth. In the meantime the rest of us would be going about our usual business and commenting on this fine fall weather.—Kansas City Times.

Young America Asks—

'Have We Lost the Ability to Think?'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE'S a searing criticism of Young America, by one of 'em. The forthright challenge that—

THEY'VE LOST THE ABILITY TO THINK!

No question about Grampa thinking—or even Dad They had to! Life came too hard . . . too scarce . . . for idle drifting and dreaming. They may not have had our Machine Age familiarity with gadgets . . . but our 20th Century cynicism and sophistication. BUT THE MEN AND WOMEN WHO MADE AMERICA HAD TO FACE FACTS . . . OR TAKE A BEATING!

Does Youth face facts today? Does it debate the serious issues of life? Or does it chew mental lollipops . . . and leave it to Dad 'n' Uncle Sam to make up the deficit? "IT DOES!" says Dorothy Rogers of Birmingham, Ala., tearing into her generation

"DEAR MISS ROBINSON:—

"The young people of America have lost the art of thinking. But if our country is to make progress, the rising generation must become a thinking generation. If youth is to fling the banner of idealism aloft and lead America's March of Progress, it must be armed with constructive thought.

"Stop and listen to the conversation, wherever you see a group of young people gathered together! Usually it is flimsy, shallow-brained drivel—absolutely devoid of brain-building ideas. Rarely has a young person courage to broach subjects of real depth, and then too frequently he receives a cold response or the razz! Youth's mind seems to be satisfied with gossip, childish jokes, wise-cracks.

'Next, take up your post at some newsstand and get an inkling of the type of literature Young America is reading. You will find that the great majority select cheap pulp magazines—sensuous, shallow stuff, rife with emotionalism. Then go to a big city library and note what a small number of young people call for serious books.

"On the college campus or in the college classroom you would expect things to be different. But not so! On the whole, campus talk is flippant, and classes are rarely fired with enthusiasm or original ideals.

"If youth would only stop and think! If youth would only realize that thought is one of life's greatest pleasures and most thrilling adventures! The manifold problems of a complex, rapidly changing civilization are upon us. They call on Young America for help and leadership! But with all our modern inventions nothing has been found to replace the human brain as a problem solver. Accept the challenge, Youth and THINK!"

Dorothy Rogers—age 24

($10 prize)

Strong stuff! And all the more impressive because it is backed by the humiliating, though accepted fact—THAT YOUNG AMERICA, DESPITE OUR BOASTED EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM, HAS THE POOREST GRASP OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS OF ANY YOUNG NATIONALS. Young Englishman, young Chinese, young Germans, young Italians, young Russians, all show a vital interest and take a vital part in their government. But though the present generation talks more competently than its parents did of public life, it still lags behind all other Youth records.

Whose fault is it? Is it just possibly Dad's and Mom's? How much discussion of PUBLIC PROBLEMS is there at YOUR dinner table . . . or YOURS . . . or YOURS? Think it over, Oldsters!

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Sackcloth and Ashes"

"Sackcloth and ashes," idiomatically used for mourning attire is a symbolism which comes to us directly from the ancient Hebrews, among whom, however, it was no figure of speech.

When in mourning for their sins or for their departed, the Jews of Biblical days literally donned this coarse fabric and rubbed ashes over their bodies.

These acts, however, were far more deep-seated than is generally realized; for they were a survival of the custom of early man, still prevalent with many savage tribes, after the death of a dear one, of disguising oneself from the spirit that brought about the demise, should it return to claim a next of kin.

For this reason, for some time after the bereavement, the family, particularly the widow, of the deceased would smear the body with clay or mud and would don clothes entirely different from what was usually worn, a costume of grass say, which covered the body, face and head completely.

This served not only as a disguise, but also as a warning to all who saw, since primitive man believed death to be contagious.

A Farmer's Diary

Clever Squirrels.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A LITTLE red squirrel makes his home in our attic. During early autumn when seeds of peaches, plums, or even apple cores were abundant, little Bushy Tail would come in the night and feast upon fresh seed kernels. Seeds of pumpkins or squash, left to dry on the porch shelf, were eaten and scattered. At first, we blamed the mischief on a rat, but when we saw large plum seeds ground out perfectly and the inside gone, we knew it must have been a squirrel.

A short time later we glimpsed him frisking about the maple beside the cistern, then up into the clematis vine, and under the porch roof. When I watch him dart up a tree he warily keeps the trunk or a heavy branch between me and himself.—just why, I wonder if he knows.

We heard him gnawing in the attic, during the night. Upon investigation, I found a soft nest of dry leaves, dry grass, and twigs with walnut shells scattered all about. I mentioned our little tenant to a friend, and he told me another story, which he said his grandfather told him.

When his grandfather was a little boy, his father had some used shingles neatly piled near a large stream that ran east of their farm. One spring, high water washed away the foot-log across this stream, and soon after, he noticed that the shingles were disappearing.

One morning, early, he watched beside a tree and saw a big red squirrel grab a shingle in his mouth and hurry to the river's edge. There he laid the shingle on the water, jumped on, and with his tail spread for a sail, went gliding diagonally across the stream. A troop of others followed the leader, until a dozen were ferried over to the other shore.

"Did your grandpa dream that yarn?" I asked.

"No indeed. All the older folks around our neighborhood declared it to be a fact."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Notes on the big town, jotted down on a quick round-up:

It isn't often that you see more than one or two mounted cops at a time in New York, and so when about 20 of them wheeled into West street and headed towards the North German Lloyd steamship docks we allowed our curiosity to get the better of us and followed after.

There were about 2,000 men, women and children lining the streets, hissing and jeering. The German steamship Bremen was easing out of her berth on the way to her home port, and the farewell party had arrived to voice its opinion, of the way affairs are being conducted in the Fatherland. All of these opinions were unprintable. In addition to the mounties there were scores of foot police, clutching their nightsticks. No bombs were tossed, and therefore no skulls were cracked. But the cat-calls and the rude epithets were an education to the ear. All were addressed personally to Hitler.

GEORGE LOWTHER, actor, writer, bobs up with an interesting sidelight on the late John L. Sullivan's barroom philoposhy. Mr. Lowther is planning a biography of the great John L., and in unearthing material he came across this incident.

It appears that John was in his Boston pub one night when a pal rushed up with the news that a mob of socialites were slumming in the district and had just entered a rival pub. "Let's run over there, John," screamed the bloke, "and punch a couple of them snobs in the nose."

"Let's walk there," replied John, removing his apron, "and punch them ALL in the nose."

ARTHUR MURRAY failed to name a single debutante in his annual list of "best dancers" in New York. He named eight society women and they are, Mrs. S. Sloan Colt, Mrs. Huntingdon Hartford, Mrs. Orson Munn, Mrs. John C. Hughes, Mrs. Allen J. McIntosh, Mrs. Edward McIlvain, Mrs. Henry Faber, and Mrs. Raymond Rubicam.

What makes good dancers? "Well," confesses Mr. Murray, "it isn't just the mastery of new steps or perfect technical execution. It's charm, flexibility, versatility, personality — in other words dance savior faire, the sense of knowing what-to-do. These women all have it — to spare."

Here's the little tragedy of a man who happens to look very much like a celebrity. He is Jim Cope of the A. M. A. and he is a dead ringer for Tom Dewey, our popular young district attorney who was defeated by Governor Lehman in the recent elections. Cope has the same eyes, same hair, same mustache, even hunches his shoulders in the Dewey manner.

Cope was constantly mistaken for Dewey during the campaign, but the pay-off came during dinner at the Crillon after the ballot count had returned Lehman the winner.

Suddenly a portly but soft-spoken gentleman came up to Cope and touched his shoulder. "It's all right, Mr. Dewey," he said, "you put up a good fight."

"Thank you very much," Cope gravely replied.

Principles of Meat Cookery Essential

By RUTH CHAMBERS

She may be expert at broiling lamb chops, and perhaps she can prepare a roast of which any cook might be proud. But the bride who is beginning her career as homemaker soon finds that there's much to this matter of selecting and preparing meat that she still has to learn. And as she soon realizes—what her mother perhaps told her—that when the meat course is right, the rest of the menu seems naturally to fall in line, she will be very eager to find out as quickly as she can all about the various meat cuts, which ones to select and the proper method of cooking them.

MEAT CUTS FOR THRIFT

If she is a truly modern young woman and budgets her household expenses, she will want to know about the economy cuts of beef, pork, veal and lamb, and she will want to use them also to give variety to her meals, for she will soon find that chops and steaks and a Sunday roast can grow monotonous if served week after week.

Another problem which confronts the bride and any other home-maker who is cooking for two is that of avaiding waste. No matter how clever she is in preparing leftover dishes, she will find it to her advantage to purchase smaller cuts for roasting than those served at her mother's table. For instance, instead of a leg of lamb, she may buy a sirloin roast, cut from the upper part of the leg and the loin.

Basic Rules.

The basic rules of meat cookery are few and simple. Roasting, broiling and panbroiling are ways of cooking by dry heat. Tender cuts, from the less exercised parts of the meat animal and containing less connective tissue, and the ground meats, in which the long fibers have been cut, are cooked by dry heat. Other meats require long, slow cooking in moist heat, that is, braising or cooking in water. (Meat should never be boiled, always simmered.)

However, there are a few exceptions to the above rule. All cuts of lamb (with the possible exception of neck and shanks) are tender enough to roast or broil. On the other hand veal, also the meat of a young animal and very tender, is lacking in fat and is therefore never broiled. A chunky piece, like the leg, may be roasted at low heat. But smaller pieces cutlets, chops and steaks, are braised. Veal is not cooked in water, also because of its lack of fat.

Pork, all cuts of which are tender, is either roasted or braised, not broiled. This is because it is best when cooked slowly for a long time, until thoroughly done, to bring out its full flavor. Bacon and smoked ham may be broiled, however.

A help to the bride in making roasting sure and easy is the roast-meat thermometer. This is inserted into the meat before cooking so that the bulb reaches the center of the thickest muscle. This thermometer so placed registers the internal temperature of the meat, and when this is raised to a certain point, the roast is done. This is the only accurate way of telling when a roast is done.

Here, in concise form, are guiding rules for the selection and preparation of the various meat cuts.

Roasting.

Beef—Rib, sirloin tip, tenderloin.

Pork—Loin, tenderloin, shoulder, ham, smoked ham and shoulder.

Lamb—Leg, rack, loin, shoulder.

Veal—Loin, rack, leg, shoulder.

1—Season with salt and pepper.

2—Place roast on rack, with fat side up.

3—Do not add water; do not cover; do not baste.

4—Place in slow oven (300°-350° F.) and let roast until done.

5—Cooking time and internal temperature as indicated on roast-meat thermometer:

Beef—Rare, 18 to 20 minutes per pound—140° F. internal temperature. Medium, 22 to 25 minutes per pound—160° F. internal temperature. Well done, 27 to 30 minutes per pound—170° F. internal temperature.

Pork—Fresh, 30 minutes per pound—185° F. internal temperature. Smoked, 25 to 30 minutes per pound—170° F. (Hams specially processed require shorter cooking time. These should be cooked to an internal temperature of 145°-150° F.)

Lamb—30 to 35 minutes per pound—175°-182° F. internal temperature.

Veal—30 minutes per pound—170° F. internal temperature.

Broiling.

Beef — Porterhouse, T-bone, club, sirloin, rib steaks, top round, tenderloin.

Pork—Bacon, smoked ham.

1—Place steaks or chops on rack in thoroughly preheated broiling oven.

2—Place rack so that top of steak or chops is about 3 inches from source of heat. If distance must be less reduce temperature accordingly.

3—When brown on one side, season with salt and pepper and turn.

4—When brown on second side, season and serve immediately.

1—Place steaks or chops in a sizzling hot, heavy, ungreased frying pan.

2—Do not add water or cover.

3—Let meat brown on one side; turn and let brown on the other side.

4—Reduce temperature and let cook until done, turning from time to time.

5—Pour off fat as it accumulates.

Braising.

(Braising is the method used in preparing pot-roasts, Swiss steak and fricassee. Veal chops and steaks and pork chops are cooked most successfully this way.)

Beef—Chuck, neck, short ribs, brisket, flank, round, rump.

Pork—Chops, shoulder steaks, tenderloin.

Lamb—Neck slices, shoulder, breast, shank.

1—Season with salt and pepper; dredge with flour.

2—Brown on all sides in hot lard.

3—Add a small quantity of liquid.

4—Cook slowly until done.

Stews.

Beef—Flank, neck, plate, brisket, shank, short ribs.

Pork—Kidney.

Lamb—Breast, neck, shoulder, shank.

Veal — Shank, neck, breast, shoulder.

1—Cut meat into 2-inch cubes.

2—Season with salt and papper.

3—Brown, if desired, on all sides in hot lard.

4—Cover with boiling water.

5—Cover kettle tightly and let cook slowly until done. Do not boil.

6—Add vegetables just long enough before serving so they will be done.

Beef — Plate, brisket, shank, short ribs, corned beef.

Pork—Smoked ham and shoulder.

1—Cover meat with boiling water.

2—Season with salt and pepper.

3—Let cook until done at simmering temperature. Do not boil.

4—Add vegetables just long enough before serving so that they will be done.

To make paper thin sandwich slices, use a very sharp knife and cut with a sawing motion. Cream the butter until soft, then place a dab on the bread and spread it with silver knife. Add filling and arrange sandwich fashion. Buttering both slices of bread helps prevent the filling from soaking in.

Kitchen Hints

Holiday cookies and cakes in which honey is used need about two weeks for ripening. They improve with age, provided, of course, they are stored in covered jars in cool place. Regular fruit jars with rubber rings make good containers.

Apples stuffed with mincemeat and baked make a delicious winter dessert. Wash, peel and core the apples and stuff them an inch from the top. Bake as usual. Lemon sauce goes well with this combination.

Wild rice expands about twice its bulk. Over-cooking will darken it as well as decrease the flavor. Wild rice combines nicely with creamed mushrooms, served plain or escalloped.

To make your popovers really pop over, be sure to have the baking pans will greased and very hot. The pans should "sizzle" when you quickly touch them with fingers dipped in cold water.

Use a fork for stirring rice while cooking. When done rinse well in hot water. Cover pan with cloth and set in pan of hot water over low heat until serving time. One tablespoon for each cup of rice added to the boiling water when cooking will help keep the rice white.

Too much water makes pie crust tough and also makes it hard to roll out. Ad water about a teaspoonful at a time and use as little flour as possible on rolling pin and board.

If you have an inner-spring mattress handle it carefully to prevent any of the springs from loosening. Turn it quickly and lay it on a flat surface to air. Never hang it over the end of a bed as the springs in the center could then easily get out of condition.

A pastry brush is a very handy kitchen tool. You can buy one or use a small well made paint brush. Use such brushes for glazing rolls and cookies, dusting baked fruits and vegetables and for "painting" fish, fowl and meats with savory sauces or melted fat. Wash the brush thoroughly after using and sterilize it for five minutes in boiling water. Wipe dry and hang up until next time.

When planning your meals aim for a balance in soft and solid, strong and mild-flavored, and a variety in colors as well as watching out for nutriment values.

DRAFT PROGRAM TO BROADEN U.S. NEUTRALITY ACT

Experts Work on Proposal to Increase Roosevelt Power to Impose Embargo.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—A plan to amend the United States neutrality act so that the president could apply an embargo on any nation he deemed to be an aggressor is being prepared by government experts for presentation to President Roosevelt.

The proposed amendments would be designed to transform the neutrality law into one of the most powerful diplomatic weapons in existence.

State department and other officials are preparing the plan. It calls for sweeping changes which would put "teeth" into United States foreign policy. The proposals, after submission to the president, will be worked over with congressional leaders in an effort to clear the way for legislation amending the neutrality law at the next session of congress

Hear of Amendments.

Although government officials were silent or denied that the proposal had any official status, it was learned from unimpeachable sources that amendments under consideration included changes that would:

1. Increase the discretionary power of the president in dealing with belligerent and with aggressor nations.

2. Give the president power to name the aggressor in foreign conflict and apply an embargo on that nation without also applying it to a nation being attacked.

3. Empower the president to prohibit shipment of all war materials to an aggressor nation.

4. Include Canada in the list of Latin American nations to which the act at present does not apply.

Such changes would fit into President Roosevelt's recent program of preparing for defense of the Americas if need arose and with the pursuance of that policy at the coming Pan-American conference at Lima, to which Secretary of State Cordell Hull now is en route. By including Canada in the list of nations to which the present act does not apply, the United States would strengthen Mr. Roosevelt's declaration of last summer that this government would not stand "idly by" in event of an attack on our neighbor on the north.

The fact that these proposals are under consideration does not necessarily mean that all of the changes outlined would be proposed by the administration or adopted by congress. The details remain to be smoothed out, expanded or modified, but in any event a stiff congressional battle seems likely if request is made for greater discretionary power for the chief executive. The extent to which congressional leaders can gauge the opposition probably will guide formulation of the proposed amendments.

QUIZ 3 IN PURSE SNATCHING CASE

Police Free Young Suspects When Woman Is Unable to Identify Them.

A search for a youthful colored purse snatcher who has stopped three Mansfield women in the past week continued today after three suspects picked up over the weekend had been released by police when efforts to link them with the thefts failed.

Police Chief Meade K Bates said that detectives had picked up three youths Saturday and Sunday and had taken them to the home of Mrs. Nellie Staiger, 37 Glessner avenue, in an effort to have her identify them

Mrs. Staiger was with Mrs. Ethel Gump, 240 Sturges avenue, when the latter was assaulted by a youth Friday night who attempted to take her purse containing more than $100

Detective Lee J. Remy reported that Mrs. Staiger said one of the suspects tallied with Mrs. Gump's assailant but that she could not make a positive identification.

MAD SCULPTOR GETS 139 YEARS IN 3 MURDERS

Irwin Shouts Against 'Rich Man's Justice' as Court Imposes Penalty.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Robert Irwin, 31-year-old former asylum inmate, shouted in general sessions court today that he was a victim of "rich man's justice" as Judge James C. Wallace sentenced him to a minimum term of 139 years in prison for the triple Gedeon murder of Easter Sunday, 1937.

The slight-statured sculpter who snuffed out three lives in a Beekman Hill apartment because he was disappointed in love, his sunken face contorted with rage, pounded the rail and screamed at Judge Wallace that the proceedings were "just a farce."

"You say you represent justice," he shouted. "I say to you that you do not. You represent a rich man's justice."

Enters Guilty Plea.

Irwin had interrupted his trial on first degree murder charges last Nov. 15 while a jury was being selected to plead guilty to the second degree murder of beautiful Veronica Gedeon, 20-year-old artist's model, her 54-year-old mother, Mary, and Frank Byrnes, a lodger in their homes.

In pronouncing sentence today Judge Wallace acted on the prosecution's plea that Irwin, who had spent three years of his life in Rockland state hospital, be placed where he could never again, "so long as he lives," endanger the lives of others.

Wallace sentenced Irwin to 99 years to life for the Byrnes slaying and to 20 years to life for each of the other two slayings, all of the sentences to run consecutively.

When Judge Wallace asked if he wished to speak, Irwin heaved himself up, leaned forward and began a long harangue.

"I am not guilty of wilful aggression against society, nor am I ignorant or unable to speak."

"Your honor," Irwin continued. "I beg of you, please let me plead my case I have much to say that has a bearing on these proceedings."

Judge Wallace displayed impatience.

"You have pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree," he snapped, "and this court does not wish to hear any tirades from you."

Irwin's prison-bleached face became a mask of fury.

"Then that order is just a farce," he bellowed. "I have a real and definite reason to speak. You say you represent justice. I say to you that you do not."

Judge Wallace, grimacing, began to read from papers on his desk but Irwin would not subside.

"You represent a rich man's justice," he screamed.

Wooster Professor Discusses Topic 'Slave or Master.'

A discussion on the subject, "Slave or Master" by Dr. Winford L. Sharp, professor of psychology at Wooster college, featured the weekly meeting of the Community Christian Youth Forum last night at the First Presbyterian church.

Not until one assumes self-responsibility is one on the way to success, Dr. Sharp told the young people. "Success is measured by the service one renders society. The supreme purpose in living is to use one's abilities for the advancement of all that Jesus Christ represented in his life," he said. "On should undertake tasks one can finish and have a worthy purpose to accomplish," he advised the young people.

A recital by the Bucyrus Male chorus in conjunction with a public meeting of the Forum will be held next Sunday at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

William Layton and Robert Larson led the devotional service at last night's meeting.

Work Seems Like Play Since Vendol Relieved Dizziness

Westinghouse Electric employee also had coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, and severe headaches, till constipation was relieved by this famous medicine.

MR. PAUL E. DOUGLASS

"I used to almsot dread for time to come to start my day's work, feeling the way I did, but Vendol has changed all that and now it is more like play than work," said Mr Paul E. Douglass of route 2, Mansfield employed as a Tool Maker at Westinghouse Electric, in giving his enthusiastic recommendation for this medicine that is doing so much good all around here, to the Vendol Man who is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts

"Every morning I'd roll out of bed feeling dizzy, my head dull and heavy, tongue had a furry coating, and I'd have an awful taste in my mouth It would take several hours before I'd begin to feel right

"My meals seemed to disagree with me, lay heavy in my stomach, and the gas was often so bad it made me feel terribly bloated. Instead of digesting as it should, my food would sour, and bitter fermentations would rise in my throat.

"Everyone was praising Vendol so highly, that I got a bottle, and this was the treatment I needed. It gave the most marvelous relief from constipation, then no matter what I ate I never had any gas, sourness or choking feeling. I began to enjoy restful sleep and now I awaken every morning with a clear head, no dizzy feelings, tongue has cleared off and I have no more brassy taste in my mouth

"I wouldn't take anything for the splendid relief Vendol gave and I advise anyone suffering from constipation and the many symptoms caused by it, to take Vendol without waiting a day."

Why delay? Come to the Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts., and give this splendid Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine a chance to help you, too. Let the Vendol Man explain all about it. There is no charge. Vendol is sold by most all leading druggists.
